RUSSIA AND CHINA SEVER RELATIONS; TROOPS CLASH

FRONTIER IS FIGHT SCENE IN FAR EAST

Red Troops Being Massed— Both Nations Withdraw Their Foreign Envoys

(By International News Service)

A clash between Soviet Russian troops and Chinese on the Manchurian frontier when the Russians attempted to cross the Amur river was reported in an unconfirmed press dispatch from Peking to the London Daily Mail today.

Attaches of the Chinese legation in Moscow and Chinese consulates throughout Soviet Russia are preparing to evacuate the Soviet Union, according to International News Service dispatches direct from Moscow.

Soviet troops are said to be massing in force at strategic points on the Manchurian frontier, equipped with airplanes, poison gas apparatus and field guns. The concentration at Pogradichna was reported to be exceptionally heavy.

TRAIN SERVICE STOPPED
Shanghai reports 40,000 Soviet troops massed between Manchuria, the gateway to Siberia, and Blagovestchensk.

Train service on the Chinese Siberia-Harbin, Manchuria railway has been suspended.

A dozen American travelers, bound for China, were caught unaware in Siberia by suspension of train service and will have to make their journey via Vladivostok.

The Soviets are closing business houses throughout Manchuria and are evacuating women and children.

Only a skeleton staff has been left in the Soviet consulate at Harbin to visa passports for Japan.

DEPORTATION CONTINUES
Chinese Nationalists are continuing the deportation of Russian communists from Manchuria, according to word to the International News Service from Dairen, via Peking.

Red military planes are reported ready to make a hostile demonstration at Pogradichna.

Japan is maintaining an attitude of aloofness. The Japanese general staff has decided to send additional troops to Manchuria according to a Central News dispatch from Tokyo.

SOVIETS RECALLED
The Soviet charge d'affaires and consul at Peking were recalled today by the Moscow government.

A rigid dispatch reported that Gen. Budenny, the Soviet generalissimo, plans to concentrate heavy air forces all along the Manchurian boundaries, commander railways leading into Manchuria and strengthen the Moscow and Leningrad garrisons. The same dispatch added that "it was believed that Soviet Russia would withhold aggressive military action, awaiting a more polite note from China in reply to the Soviet ultimatum."

THREE YOUTHS ARE FINED FOR THEFTS

Ralph Hedge, Clayton Ellis and Emanuel Turner, of near Ashland, Fairfieldco, who were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Ward on charges of stealing gasoline and tools were given a hearing before Squire Price Thursday morning. All pleaded guilty to the charge and were fined $25 and costs each. Ellis and Turner paid their fines but in default of payment, Hedge was committed to the county jail.

When arrested these boys were a power shovel north of Circleville, Ind. When they saw Ward, they all fled but Ward captured Turner. Later he went to Oakland and arrested Ellis.

Hedge, the third member of the trio, walked in the sheriff's office Wednesday and was put in jail until the hearing Thursday.

Miss Mildred Mason is visiting friends in Middletown and Cincinnati this week.

WAR THREATS IN FAR EAST

This map shows the area of dispute in the Russo-China crisis over the Chinese Eastern Railroad. Russia demands restoration of her officials whom China has ousted from the railroad, while both sides are massing troops in preparation for eventualities should peaceful counsels fail.

DOZEN MORE FEARED DEAD IN WRECKAGE

Crack Train of Rhode Island
Line Plunges Into Raging
Mountain Stream.

DENVER, July 18.—Eight persons are known to be dead, a dozen others are feared to have been killed, and more than a score of passengers were injured early today when the Atlantic Express, crack passenger westbound on the Rock Island railroad, crashed through a bridge on Spring creek between Vona and Stratton, 150 miles east of Denver.

The bridge had been weakened by a heavy cloudburst.

The train, No. 5, from Chicago to Denver, consisted of 12 cars, and was being pulled by two engines.

The first official report to Rock Island officials here from engineer Ryan, driver of the lead locomotive, said:

"One sleeper missing, under water; one sleeper partially submerged; nine coaches derailed.

"The missing sleeper, a Pullman made up in St. Louis, contained seven passengers and the porter. All missing.

"The bridge was knocked out and part of the east bank of the creek carried away.

"A huge wall of water just started to come rushing over the bridge as we approached. The water is 15 feet high now and subsiding."

The engine and first two cars of the train passed safely over the bridge, a 75-foot span across Spring creek. The third car, in which virtually all the passengers are believed to have been trapped and drowned, went into the water.

The next cars were piled upon the bank of the creek, one of them being partially under water.

GREAT CONFUSION
Great confusion followed the wreck, which occurred just before sunrise in a sparsely settled section of the eastern Colorado prairie, not far from the Kansas line.

Surgeons, nurses and train wrecking crews were immediately dispatched to the scene of disaster from Denver, Limon, Burlington and Goodland, Kan.

First rescuers to reach the scene were powerless to search for any possible living victims in the submerged car, which was buried in the sand beneath roaring waters of the flooded creek.

Wife Not Guilty For Mate's Brew, Ohio Judge Says

DAYTON, O., July 18.—When a woman manufactures and sells "home brew" at the direction of her husband, she is not guilty of violating the prohibition laws.

A man is "king in his own home," and therefore the husband is responsible for what happens.

These two facts were glimpsed today from a ruling by Probate Judge William C. Wiseman of Dayton.

A home was raided here, 45 bottles of beer were seized, and the woman was arrested.

At the subsequent trial, the woman pleaded that she had made the beer at the direction of her husband.

Judge Wiseman then ruled that under established law, the husband is entirely responsible for what goes on in his home.

FRED WITTICH CLUB CATERER

Mr. and Mrs. Rob Stepleton
Will Be in Charge of Country House.

The question of employing a caterer at the Pickaway Country club has been satisfactorily solved, with the procuring of Fred Wittich for the position. Mr. Wittich did not accept the conditions hurriedly but has considered the position for some time.

His plans for serving the club with good food have been nearly completed. He has planned to have Mr. and Mrs. Rob Stepleton take up their residence at the club. Mrs. Stepleton will see that the house is kept in order and help with the cooking.

Mrs. Viola Glick will assume the duties of Mrs. Stepleton who has been cooking at Wittich's at noon, and Mrs. Olive Stout who has also had experience there will be available for large affairs. The arrangements seem splendid and the Country club is satisfied with Mr. Wittich's culinary ability and the arrangement he has made for extra help.

He will be ready to serve suppers at the club by Friday night at which time he will introduce his "Snack lunch" which may be had without reservation. Dinners for any number by reservation may be made at any time with Mr. Wittich or by calling the Country club. Sandwiches and cold drinks will be served as in the past by Mrs. Stepleton at the counter. Sunday dinners may be engaged until 6 p. m. Saturday by either calling the Country club or Wittich's.

PROHIBITION GIVEN CRIME WAVE BLAME

Executive of Maryland Says
Law Infractions Less Without Dry Statutes.

GROTON, Conn., July 18.—"The eighteenth amendment imposes no obligation, moral or legal, on the states of the union to enforce prohibition."

Governor Albert K. Ritchie of Maryland made this vigorous declaration today before the twenty-first conference of governors in replying to the suggestion of Geo. W. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's crime commission, that the governors approach the federal government with a proposal to assume the burden of exercising internal police regulations to prevent the sale of intoxicants in saloons and speakeasies.

Under Mr. Wickersham's scheme, the federal prohibition authorities would have only to prevent importation, manufacture and shipment of liquor in interstate commerce. Thus far the federal government has "borne the brunt" of enforcing prohibition, Wickersham said in a letter read before the governors' session Tuesday.

HOOVER GETS IN DRY ROW

Southern Congressional Drys
Want His Opinion of Wickersham Letter.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(INS)—In the face of severe criticism and a demand George W. Wickersham resign as chairman of President Hoover's law enforcement commission for his suggestion Tuesday to the governors' conference that the states share the problem of enforcing prohibition with the federal government, the White House today declared Wickersham and his associates will continue the task assigned them without interference from the president.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Southern Congressional drys today opened a campaign to force President Hoover to endorse or disavow the proposal of Ex-Artillery-General George W. Wickersham, chairman of the president's law enforcement commission, to divide prohibition enforcement between the Federal Government and the states.

At the same time they attacked the sincerity of the administration's enforcement pledge, and injected politics with the declaration that Wickersham has done what the drys said Alfred E. Smith would have done if he got into the White House.

Although heads of some dry organizations have defended the Wickersham proposal as the present government policy, the Southern senatorial drys rose en masse to condemn it as "the capitol smokes" recovered from its astonishment over the pronouncement.

The wets were still somewhat puzzled over the possible effect of the idea. They particularly welcomed what they assumed to be an implication that the present law is unenforceable.

With Senator Caraway (D.) of Arkansas, calling for Wickersham's resignation "unless Mr. Hoover knew that his chairman was to make such a proposal."

Other dry senators attacked it as a plan to virtually nullify the 18th amendment.

Cooper Warns Against Great Utility Mergers Based on Selfishness, Greed

Tells Governors' Conference
People Will Deal Forcefully With Offenders.

GROTON, CONN., July 18.—(INS)—Warning that the people will deal "with directness and force" in big utility mergers that have for their purpose "selfishness and greed" was voiced by Governor Myers Y. Cooper of Ohio in an address today before the conference of governors. The right kind of consolidations, however, will meet with no objection from the public, he declared.

"If consolidations and enlargements bring to the people advantages of service and a consequent lowering of the cost, these benefits will accrue and such consolidations will prove of advantage to the people," said Governor Cooper.

"If on the other hand great aggregations of wealth enjoying monopolistic privileges fail to contribute to the economic and social well being and use these enterprises for the purpose of selfishness and greed, the people will not be without remedy to deal with the situation and that with directness and force."

REGULATION NECESSARY
Governor Cooper declared an important question before the American people has to do with a proper regulation of great aggregations of wealth invested in enterprises of a quasi-public nature for general service to the people.

"The attitude of the people toward the function of government in this matter is definitely fixed and clear," he said, "while recognizing the need for expansion, the people demand that government shall so regulate these vast interests as fully to protect them against unjust rates and inferior service."

"To talk about destroying or tearing down structures of this character is simply to ignore the business of the age in which we live and the tremendous exertions made upon such service."

LAW ENFORCEMENT FILE
Speaking of law enforcement Governor Cooper said President Hoover, "with clarity and deep conviction," recognized in his inaugural address the great need for cooperation on the part of the people. He said this was a "challenge" to every individual citizen.

"A spirit of lawlessness lifted its ugly and menacing head at the conclusion of the world war," Governor Cooper continued, and, strange as it may seem, we have seen in otherwise reputable quarters the condoning rather than the condemning of offenses against the law.

"It is clearly the obligation of all good citizens to be obedient to the law and uphold those who are charged with the responsibility of its enforcement."

Governor Cooper scored the tendency to resort to legislation as a panacea for social, moral and economic ills, adding: "The truth is there has been an all too common disposition to legislate on everything and to regulate everybody on the theory of public good."

The 4-H Camp Fire programs sponsored by the Pickaway-co Farm Bureau, which were held in the Carpenter Woods and May Grove, Tuesday and Wednesday, July 16-17, were a success. The 4-H club members and leaders went to the Scioto river attended the Tuesday program, while those east of the river attended the Wednesday program.

Miss Geneva Bane, home management specialist, Ohio State university, and Guy Dowdy, assistant state club leader, assisted County Agent H. S. Lewis and Miss Catherine Belymer with the programs.

Miss Mary Shortridge, of Jackson-twp., and Miss Mary McKenzie, of Pickaway-twp., reported their visit to the state extension workers and leaders' camp which was held at Utica, during the week of July 1.

The 4-H club delegates to the district camp at Yellow Springs, Laura Tener, Helen Gulick, Betty Fischer, Mary Martha Last, Judith Schlegel, Marion Strous, Dorothy Miller and Virginia Anderson, each reported their experiences there.

The Camp Fire program consisted of games, group singing, lighting of the Indian council fire and motion pictures. A total attendance of more than 300 members, their parents and friends enjoyed the programs.

The Camp Fires are a mid-summer activity of the organized 4-H club program.

Inventor and Pilot Killed At
Detroit When New Plane
Collapses In Air.

DETROIT, July 18.—(INS)—Melvin E. Dare, Detroit airplane inventor, and Slyph W. Brown, his pilot, today were numbered as the most recent martyrs to the science of aviation.

The two were killed late yesterday when a monoplane invented by Dare, which they were flying at Scully airport, plunged 75 feet to the ground as its left wing collapsed.

The tragedy was witnessed by about 75 persons, including a number of capitalists whom Dare was attempting to persuade to come into his company. Dare is said to have sold patent rights for various aeronautical devices for more than $1,000,000.

He had spent years in perfecting a monoplane with a more flexible wing play which would allow landing at lower speed. He had entered the craft in the Gugenheim aircraft safety contest, and it was the 13th entry received.

LOS ANGELES, July 18.—(INS)—Alvin Knechtel, cameraman and Wyndham Hauber, film stunt performer, were dead today as a result of an odd airplane crash.

A plane owned and piloted by Knechtel with Hauber in the front cockpit, dived to earth.

Ill, but determined to fly in preparation for a picture, Knechtel fainted at the controls, according to Stephen Stewart, pilot, whose ship was soaring alongside Knechtel's.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., July 18.—(INS)—Lieut. W. E. Baker of Brooks Field and Lieut. E. O'Donnell, student officer, were instantly killed here today when their training plane fell from a height of 1,000 feet.

AMBULANCES HAVE NO RIGHT OF WAY

NEW YORK, July 18.—Ambulances have no special right of way on the highways, according to a ruling made by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today.

The ruling was made when the court affirmed an award of $18,250 obtained by Mary K. Allen against the Henry W. Putnam Memorial hospital of Bennington, Vt., one of whose ambulances ran into her motor car and injured her.

EFFICIENCY IS NEED HERE, COUNCIL SAYS

Conference With Mayor and Safety Director Called—
Budget Approved.

A shake-up in the Circleville police department to obtain more efficiency in the law enforcement branch of the city government was demanded by the city council in one of its two meetings last night. The other major action of the session was the approval of the city budget for 1930, which calls for $28,477, an increase of $10,000 over the budget for 1929.

The action in demanding a shake-up in the police department came when a motion for the safety committee to confer with Mayor B. T. Hedges and Safety Director Cassius Clay in regard to the management of the department was passed unanimously by council.

The motion was introduced after an ordinance increasing the pay of the chiefs and members of the police and fire departments $10 each had been passed. Council granted the salary increases with the understanding that more efficiency from the police should be demanded.

COMPLAINTS RECEIVED
The demand for more efficiency on the part of the police in answer to numerous complaints which have been made concerning the department, council members said. The safety committee will confer with Mayor Hedges and Safety Director Clay concerning the methods of obtaining the desired improvement. The conference will investigate the department's personnel equipment, management and reports of ill feeling between the members.

Council is determined that the police department shall be improved and cars not where the falls so long as that and is attained, one councilman said Thursday. The members of the safety committee are W. L. Hand, T. F. Barnes and Frank Markey.

The city's 1930 budget was approved by council and calls for $35,477 to meet the city's needs next year. The usual requirements of Circleville in 1930 are estimated to be the same as in 1929, but money for the operation of the municipal hospital raises the budget $10,000 over that for 1929.

ITEMS IN BUDGET
The general fund in the budget is estimated at $31,476, of which $5249 is general; $13,395, public safety; $2370, health; $35,462, public service; $1500, poor fund; and $10,000, hospital operation. To this is added $5500 for the library and $18,501 for the building fund.

City Solicitor Paul Adams called council for authority to employ legal counsel to assist him in taking action against the Frank P. Berger estate for the collection of the hospital bequest made in the Berger will. Payment of the bequest has been refused by I. F. Snyder, trustee of the will, who (Turn to page eight, please)

WOUNDS FATAL TO OHIO PEN CONVICT

COLUMBUS, O., July 18.—Wounds which he received when he attempted to escape from the Junction City Brick Plant of the Ohio State Penitentiary on June 4, yesterday had claimed the life of Stanley Starr, Cleveland convict.

Starr and three other prisoners made a break from the stockade of the brick plant, near New Lexington, at that time. He was shot and wounded as he was scaling the fence. The three other prisoners made good their escape and were unsuccessfully sought near Circleville.

Starr, who was serving a two to three year term for carrying concealed weapons, was removed to the penitentiary hospital here, and just as he was reported to be on the road to recovery, blood poisoning set in and claimed his life.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Glendon and daughter, Carol Jean, who have been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Glendon of E. Union-st., have returned to their home in Ashland, Ky.

CAMP FIRES ARE SUCCESS

More Than 300 Four-H Members, Parents and Friends
Attend Programs.

The 4-H Camp Fire programs sponsored by the Pickaway-co Farm Bureau, which were held in the Carpenter Woods and May Grove, Tuesday and Wednesday, July 16-17, were a success. The 4-H club members and leaders west of the Scioto river attended the Tuesday program, while those east of the river attended the Wednesday program.

Miss Geneva Bane, home management specialist, Ohio State university, and Guy Dowdy, assistant state club leader assisted County Agent H. S. Lewis and Miss Catherine Behmer with the programs.

Miss Mary Shortridge, of Jackson-twp, and Miss Mary McKenzie, of Pickaway-twp, reported their visit to the state extension workers and leaders' camp which was held at Utica, during the week of July 1.

The 4-H club delegates to the district camp at Yellow Springs, Laura Tener, Helen Gulick, Betty Fischer, Mary Martha List, Judith Schlegel, Marion Strous, Dorothy Miller and Virginia Anderson, each reported their experiences there.

The Camp Fire program consisted of games, group singing, lighting of the Indian council fire and motion pictures. A total attendance of more than 300 members, their parents and friends enjoyed the programs.

The Camp Fires are a mid-summer activity of the organized 4-H club program.

INCUBATOR BABY

6 FLIERS DIE IN 3 CRASHES

Inventor and Pilot Killed At
Detroit When New Plane
Collapses In Air.

DETROIT, July 18.—(INS.)—Melvin E. Dare, Detroit airplane inventor, and Slygh W. Brown, his pilot, today were numbered as the most recent martyrs to the science of aviation.

The two were killed late yesterday when a monoplane invented by Dare, which they were flying at Scully airport, plunged 75 feet to the ground as its left wing collapsed.

The tragedy was witnessed by about 75 persons, including a number of capitalists whom Dare was attempting to persuade to come into his company. Dare is said to have sold patent rights for various aeronautical devices for more than $1,000,000.

He had spent years in perfecting a monoplane with a more flexible wing play which would allow landing at lower speed. He had entered the craft in the Gugenheim aircraft safety contest, and it was the 13th entry received.

LOS ANGELES, July 18.—(INS.)—Alvin Knechtel, cameraman and Wyndham Hauber, film stunt performer, were dead today as a result of an odd airplane crash.

A plane owned and piloted by Knechtel, with Hauber in the front cockpit, dived to earth.

Ill, but determined to fly in preparation for a picture, Knechtel fainted at the controls, according to Stephen Stewart, pilot, whose ship was soaring alongside Knechtel's.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., July 18.—(INS.)—Lieut. W. E. Baker of Brooks Field and Lieut. E. O'Donnell, student officer, were instantly killed here today when their training plane fell from a height of 1,000 feet.

AMBULANCES HAVE NO RIGHT OF WAY

NEW YORK, July 18.—Ambulances have no special right of way on the highways, according to a ruling made by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today.

The ruling was made when the court affirmed an award of $18,250 obtained by Mary K. Allen against the Henry W. Putnam Memorial hospital of Bennington, Vt., one of whose ambulances ran into her motor car and injured her.

EFFICIENCY IS NEED HERE, COUNCIL SAYS

Conference With Mayor and
Safety Director Called—
Budget Approved.

A shake-up in the Circleville police department to obtain more efficiency in the law enforcement branch of the city government was demanded by the city council in one of its two important actions at its meeting Wednesday night. The other major accomplishment of the session was the approval of the city budget for 1930, which calls for $85,477, an increase of $10,000 over the budget for 1929.

The action in demanding a shake-up in the police department came when a motion for the safety committee to confer with Mayor B. T. Hedges and Safety Director Cassius Clay in regard to the management of the department was passed unanimously by council.

The motion was introduced after an ordinance increasing the pay of the chiefs and members of the police and fire departments $10 each had been passed. Council granted the salary increases with the understanding that more efficiency from the police should be demanded.

COMPLAINTS RECEIVED

The demand for more efficiency on the part of the police is in answer to numerous complaints which have been made concerning the department, council members said. The safety committee will confer with Mayor Hedges and Safety Director Clay concerning the methods of obtaining this desired improvement. The conference will investigate the department's personnel equipment, management and reports of ill feeling between the members.

Council is determined that the police department shall be improved and cares not where the ax falls so long as that end is attained, one councilman said Thursday. The members of the safety committee are W. L. Henn, T. F. Barnes and Frank Marion. The city's 1930 budget was approved by council and calls for $85,477 to meet the city's needs next year. The usual requirements of Circleville in 1930 are estimated to be the same as in 1929, but money for the operation of the municipal hospital raises the budget $10,000 over that for 1929.

ITEMS IN BUDGET

The general fund in the budget is estimated at $61,476, of which $5249 is general; $16,395, public safety; $2370, health; $25,462, public service; $1500, poor fund; and $10,000, hospital operation. To this is added $5500 for the library and $18,501 for the sinking fund.

City Solicitor Paul Adkins' employed council for authority to ask legal counsel to assist him in taking action against the Frank P. Berger estate for the collection of the hospital bequest made in the Berger will. Payment of the bequest has been refused by I. F. Snyder, trustee of the will, who (Turn to page eight, please)

WOUNDS FATAL TO OHIO PEN CONVICT

COLUMBUS, O., July 18.—Wounds which he received when he attempted to escape from the Junction City Brick Plant of the Ohio State Penitentiary on June 4, yesterday had claimed the life of Stanley Starr, Cleveland convict.

Starr and three other prisoners made a break from the stockade of the brick plant, near New Lexington, at that time. He was shot and wounded as he was scaling the fence. The three other prisoners made good their escape and were unsuccessfully sought near Circleville.

Starr, who was serving a two to three year term for carrying concealed weapons, was removed to the penitentiary hospital here, and just as he was reported to be on the road to recovery, blood poisoning set in and claimed his life.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Glenden-nen and daughter, Carol Jean, who have been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Glenden-nen of E. Union-st have returned to their home in Ashland, Ky.

DUGAN TRIAL IS GREAT HIT

Famous Play As Effective On Cliftona Screen As On Broadway Stage.

"The Trial of Mary Dugan" an all-dialogue screen version of Bayard Veiller's stage success of the same name opened at the Cliftona Theater Wednesday. Directed by Veiller himself, the film retains all of the elements that made the drama a world-wide hit.

Veiller has been quoted as saying that Norma Shearer did the best work of her career in this picture. There is no question that the playwright had excellent foundations for this assertion. Miss Shearer, in the role created by Ann Harding on the stage, revealed herself as the possessor of an excellent speaking voice and of a rather unusual beauty of expression. The appeal of her personality never was more irresistible.

Raymond Hackett, who plays the young barrister-brother of Mary Dugan, gave a really amazing performance. There is no question that it will make him a most sought after juvenile for the vocal screen.

Lewis Stone, who figures as Mary Dugan's first counsel, never acted badly in his life either on the stage or screen. And the same may be said for H. B. Warner, who plays the District Attorney. It seems sufficient, then, merely to note that Warner and Stone did their jobs with their usual intelligence and artistry.

Others who do exceedingly well in the practically all-star supporting cast are Lilyan Tashman, Olive Tell, Mary Doran, Wilfred North and Landers Stevens.

"PROWLERS OF THE SEA"
Ricardo Cortez, Carmel Myers and George Fawcett are starred at the Grand Theater Thursday in "Prowlers of the Sea," a story of revolutionists smuggling arms into Cuba, which holds the audience spellbound during the entire showing. A Vitaphone act and a talking comedy are also on the bill.

COMEDIANS TRAVEL
George K. Arthur and Karl Dane become world travelers in their new funmaker for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, "China Bound," which closes at the Met Theater tonight. They are on their way to the Far East, Karl as a stoker of a liner, and George as an unwilling stowaway.

Both their sweethearts are on the liner, but so is Angus McAllister, a Scotch antique dealer who is taking his daughter Joan (Josephine Dunn) and her maid Sarah, played by Polly Moran, with him on a "buying trip" to China—and away from George. The laugh riot lands the party at a Chinese port just as bandits raid the town and rout the local garrison. But Karl and George are garbed as Chinese and the bandits think they belong to their gang, some of whom arrest Josephine and Polly. Angus too gets pinched with other American tourists, but Karl is an expert with the shovel and digs them all out of their prison as George too, plays the hero, winning at last, the approval of Angus, his ex-boss.

Solitary Meals Chief Cause of Indigestion

Unmarried men and women between the ages of thirty and fifty suffer more from dyspepsia than the married folk of similar age.

This discovery has followed a Berlin physician's laborious investigation of cases of stomach trouble. It is one that cheers the heart of the young wife, whose culinary efforts are often made the subject of mirth. Her husband, for all her advice-cooking, will be more likely to have a good digestion than his unmarried friends. Bachelors eat alone, and consequently eat too fast, owing to the fact that they have no one to talk to.

The unmarried woman, says the professor, usually eats the wrong things. She will eat only what can be prepared with the least trouble, or what can be eaten unprepared. She, too, like the bachelor, is apt to bolt her meals. The solitary person, in fact, made or female, just eats because he or she must, and gets it out of the way as quickly as possible. Hence indigestion and a bad temper. The married have with their food the best of all sauces—casual and cheery conversation.

W. C. T. U. MEETING HELD
The Woman's Christian Temperance Union held a very interesting meeting at the home of Mrs. Marie Skinner last Wednesday afternoon.

The business was conducted by the president, Miss Leah Binnis. Mrs. Mary Gray led the devotionals and offered prayer. Miss Ida Allens conducted a very interesting program, several of the members taking part. The hostess assisted by Mrs. Edyth Cleary and Mrs. Daisy Turner served ice cream, wafers and iced tea.

Mrs. Fred Mowser entertained Thursday afternoon Mrs. Guy Speakman and children, Willis Warren and Max, Helen and Jean Overmire, Eldwin Hott and Howard and Bobby Elsenbrey, together with the Mowery children. Homemade ice cream and cake was served to the guests.

BIRTHDAY DINNER
A party of relatives and friends went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Jones to remind Mrs. Jones of her birthday anniversary. Guests went with well filled baskets were Mr. and Mrs. Loren Lingo of Williamsport, Mr. and Mrs. Vivian Brooks and Irma Lee, Miss Una Brooks and Charles Higman.

FOOD CLUB MEETING
The Food club met in the school basement last Tuesday afternoon and after conducting a short business session the following demonstrations were given:

Helen Overmyer and Betty Campbell demonstrated Apple Charlotte and a demonstration of Bavarian cream was given by Kathryn Kirk and Phyllis Ater. Miss Behymer will be present at the next meeting and talk to the girls. Demonstrations were assigned for the next meeting. It is hoped that a full attendance will be out to hear Miss Behymer for we feel sure she will give a very helpful talk.

Mrs. George Dresbach and daughter, Roxabel and Pearl Dresbach and Roscoe Hamilton of Indiana, were guests of Dayton Brooks Thursday.

BIRTHDAY DINNER

The neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. William Hoskins gathered at their home last Sunday complementing Mrs. Hoskins, the occasion being in celebration of her birthday anniversary. The affair was planned to be a surprise but that proved to be a "fizzle," for Mrs. Hoskins was in readiness and said "you can't fool a woman." The tables were spread on the shady lawn and looked most "weak and heavy laden" under the load of fried chicken, salad, cake and other good things which it requires to complete a picnic dinner. Games and visiting soon whiled away the afternoon. Those who enjoyed the happy occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. Willard Evans and son, Wendell, Mr. and Mrs. William Tarbill and grandson, John Edwin Peck, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hancock, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hoskins and children Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Reeves, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tarbill and daughter, Lela, Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Jennings, Geraldine and Thoburn and Miss Charlene Briggs, Mr. and Mrs.

James Willis, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Ater and son, Gene, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ater and daughter, Mabel, John Lewis and Miss Basie Shockey and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Crawford and family.

Thankful for That
A little girl who disliked milk puddings had been made to finish her portion before leaving the table. "Now may I get down?" she asked, with a sigh of relief. "When you've said your grace," nodded her mother.

"But I've nothing to give thanks for," answered the child. "Then you'd better stay there." This was too much for the little girl, and putting her hands to her face, she sobbed. "For what I have received I'm truly grateful, and I think heaven wasn't sick!"—Weekly Scotsman

CHARLES BOGG'S IS RELEASED BY COURT

Charles R. Bogg, of Williamsport, charged with stealing four hogs from Harry McGhee in April, 1927, was acquitted Wednesday afternoon when Judge J. W. Adkins of the common pleas court instructed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty at the conclusion of the prosecutor's case in the trial which has been in progress this week in Circleville.

Boone Hunter, former employee of Bogg's, was acquitted of the same charge several weeks ago when his case was heard in the same court. Bogg, who has been out under bond, was released from custody. Hunter is still confined in jail being under other indictments.

OHIO'S WHEAT IS OFF GRADE

1929 Crop In State Generally Spotty and Below Estimated Yield.

COLUMBUS, O., July 18—(INS)—Although Ohio's 1929 wheat crop as a whole will probably not be as bad as first threshing reports indicated, the first wheat to move from southern and central Ohio counties this week, indicates the crop will have more off-grade wheat than has been grown in Ohio in several years, said a bulletin issued by the Ohio Farm Bureau Corporation here today.

The corporation's first wheat purchases were made by M. R. Maney from central Ohio growers. Maney said that while the wheat threshed during and immediately after the wet weather of a week ago was of poor quality, the condition has been considerably improved by the last few days of dry weather.

However, declared Maney, the quality of the 1929 Ohio crop is generally spotty. In addition, the crop estimate at this time is considerably lower than the early season estimates.

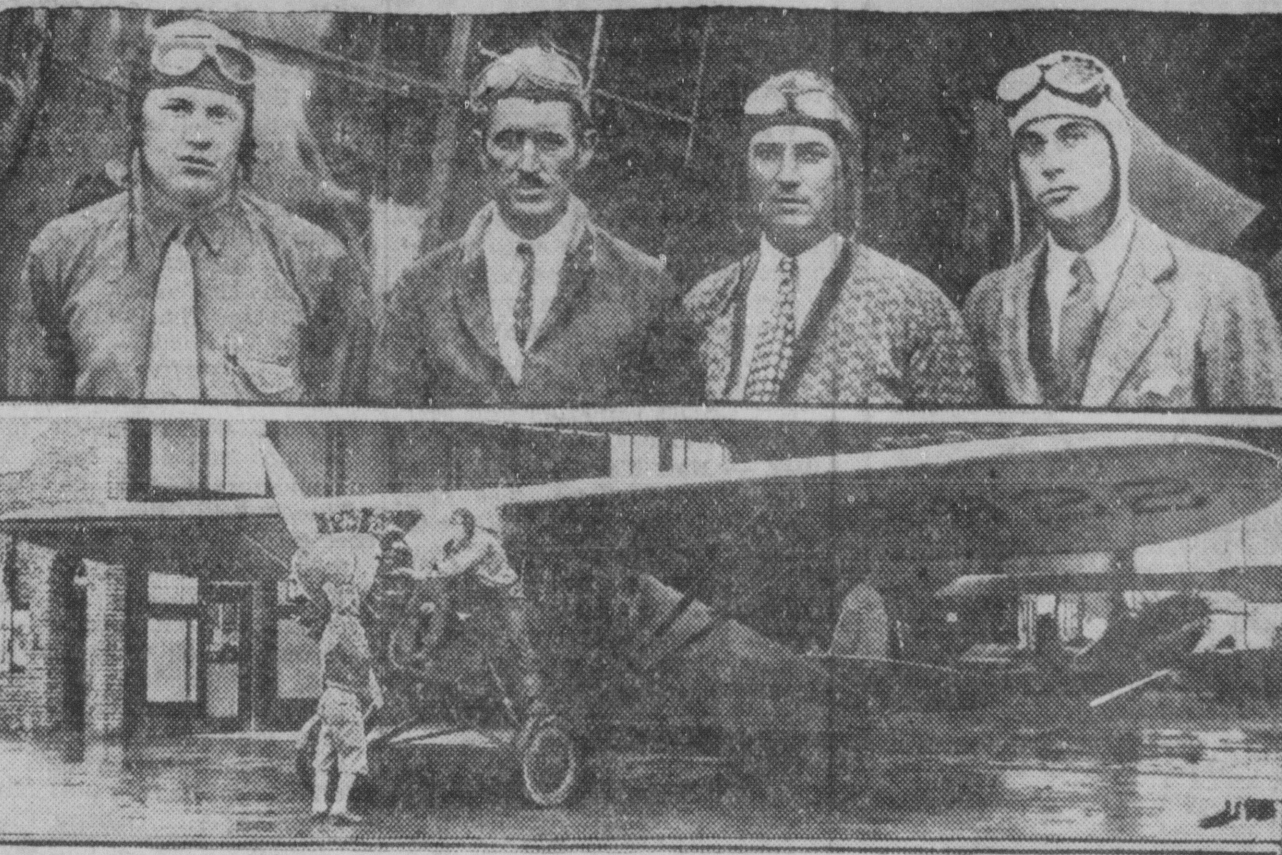

This is the first pessimistic report to come from Ohio wheat fields, which had expected a record crop this year.

IMPROVEMENT IS SEEN FOR BERGER

MILWAUKEE, WIS., July 18—(INS)—Although his condition still is grave, Victor L. Berger, Socialist party leader, was resting comfortably and showing slight signs of improvement, according to attending physicians today.

Berger, suffering from a basal skull fracture and other injuries sustained when he was struck by a street car, had regained consciousness today and his temperature was reported as only slightly above normal.

Cleveland Fliers Want Endurance Record

Following close upon the heels of the 24 1/2-hour endurance record made by the California fliers in the "Angeleno," two Cleveland fliers, W. B. Atwell, extreme left, and Edwin B. Taylor (standing next to him), will attempt to break the above record in their Fairchild plane at the national air races in Cleveland, O., with Hal E. Dungan (third from left) and Barney Rawson, extreme right, forming the refill crew.

DRY RAIDERS KICK IN DOOR OF CHURCH

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 18—(INS).—How officers kicked in a door of a Catholic convent and searched the place for a still was revealed here today when it was learned that officials of the Catholic church had protested the incident with the district attorney.

The convent was entered without the formality of a search warrant, it is charged.

As an aftermath of the incident, Buron Fitts, district attorney, has apologized to Catholic authorities, made his officers pay for the door and has ordered that no more raids be made without search warrants.

AT MASONIC PICNIC
George E. Hammel and granddaughter, Frances Snow, and Gene Rader went to Columbus Thursday where they spent the day at the Humboldt Masonic camp southeast of the city. The Masonic Chapter held their annual picnic at this time.

Possible
Stories about the preconditions of spring of professors are seldom true, but usually laughable. Perhaps this one is one of the worst: A salesman rang the door of a professor's home and little Willie, aged five, opened the door. "Is Mr. Jones in?" asked the salesman. "I am Mr. Jones," replied five-year-old Willie with becoming dignity. Then, after a haughty pause he added: "Possibly you have made a mistake and it is Professor and not Mr. Jones whom you wish to see."

SUES FOR DAMAGES FOLLOWING CRASH

A damage suit for $1,373 has been instituted in Fairfield-co common pleas court by Israel Bausman, of Marion, Ohio, against William H. Hill, of Cincinnati, as the result of an automobile accident on the Lancaster-Circleville road May 30.

Bausman states in his petition that his car was being driven by his wife and that the Lincoln auto of the defendant was being driven by the agent. Bausman charges his Chevrolet was completely demolished by the impact and that he suffered certain injuries damaging him in the sum of $1,373. Marion attorneys represent Bausman.

PROHIBITION GIVEN CRIME WAVE BLAME

concurrent jurisdiction with the federal government in that regard but whether the state exercises it is optional with them. If they choose not to do so they violate no legal or moral obligation.

Governor Ritchie declared that aside from the class of crime, such as bootlegging and hi-jacking, "which federal prohibition under the Volstead act has created and aside from crimes for which they are responsible and for offenses under the Volstead act, I doubt very much whether there is any crime wave."

CRIME DECREASING
He said statistics are more important than anything else in determining a question of whether or not there is a crime wave. He said the larger cities are just beginning to get the right kind of statistics on crime.

"In Baltimore," said Governor Ritchie, "we have been getting this date for some years and certainly there is no crime wave there. We had less burglaries in Baltimore in 1928 than in 1924, less robberies, and practically the same number of murders."

"We have no state enforcement act in Maryland. The Baltimore city police, under a ruling from the attorney general, do not arrest for offenses under the Volstead act, and the city courts do not have to try that class of cases. The result is that both police and courts are free to give their whole time to the detection and punishment of crime, and we have in Baltimore less crime than ever before, and more arrests and more convictions than ever before."

PROHIBITION BLAMED
"What is needed is to find some way of stopping the class of crimes which are caused directly or indirectly by federal prohibition under the Volstead act. If there is any crime wave, there it is. There is no use disguising this, or trying to make it seem only a part of a bigger picture or problem. It is the genesis and the whole story.

"This class of crimes must be eliminated if law and order are to be secure. You can't do this by compelling the states to take over the intrastate part of the Volstead act."

"The only way is to strike at the root of this trouble and substitute something better for the present system of federal prohibition—something which the people as a whole will respect and obey and which can be enforced."

"If this can be done, then I believe that such crime waves as may seem to exist will disappear and crime can be adequately handled, as it is in Maryland, by efficient administration of justice."

Fread of Evil Spirits Inherent in Papuans

Papuans are pagan, and largely governed by superstitious beliefs handed down from generation to generation. The Papuan cautiously approaches the rocks on the shores of the ocean and inland streams lest a spirit that abides there stir up a storm. A spirit in the clouds destroys their children, but the stronger spirit lurks in the forests. For this reason tribesmen seldom venture out at night. Papuan villages are built more for protection than comfort. Near the sea coast and rivers many of them are built over the water, while in the interior they occupy the hills where the tribesmen can survey the neighborhood for enemy invaders. If a village is in a valley, it is usually protected by a high stockade or the huts are in the tree tops. Tree platforms are the tribal watch-towers.

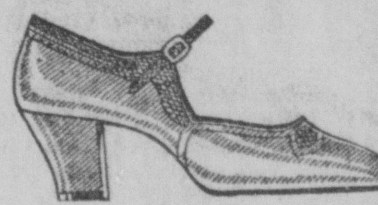

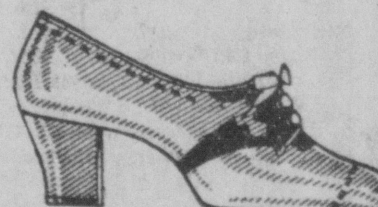

Nature's Forethought
Even Nature seems to be interested in food containers, for she provides for fruits and vegetables containers of the most efficiently protective nature possible. In the case of practically all fruits and vegetables, the skin or outer covering is a great help in preserving the wholeness of the pulp.

Nature Little Changed
Human nature changes little, if at all, as the centuries roll on, so far as we can see, and we'll bet it wasn't more than a day or two after Moses had come down from Mount Sinai with the newly enacted Ten Commandments before prominent citizens had made up their minds which to obey and which not to.—Ohio State Journal.

HOYT'S COMPOUND MADE ME "NEW"

DECLARES 20 YEAR RESIDENT OF SPRINGFIELD, OHIO: SAYS HE IS A CHANGED PERSON.

MR. ORAN ADAMS
"I am a WELL MAN since taking the Hoyt's Compound and I want to endorse it to all who suffer," said Mr. Adams. "I am 45 years of age and have lived in Springfield, Ohio for the past 20 years. During the last seven years I have been a great sufferer of the stomach and kidney trouble which seemed to grow worse all the time even though I had spent hundreds of dollars trying different kinds of advertised medicines without any results whatever. My stomach always felt as though a large hard lump was inside of it and every time I ate anything it seemed as though the lump would become larger and more painful. Stomach gas would form and push upward against my heart and at times I was hardly able to get my breath. All of my friends and acquaintances know that I have suffered terribly from this affliction and also with bowel trouble as I was continually having pains across my back and shoulders. After trying all of these other medicines without relief I was skeptical about trying anything else but finally when I kept reading endorsements from local people for the Hoyt's Compound, I went and got it and started taking it myself. The first bottle gave me so much relief that I knew at last that I had found a cure and I am still taking it and getting better every day. Every organ in my body seems to be functioning perfectly all over. I am able to work without becoming worn out and tired as before. I am now able to eat anything without having those dreadful pains and I can truthfully say that Hoyt's Compound has proved to be the greatest medicine of any I have ever taken. I am now a WELL MAN and want to endorse it to everyone who suffers."

Hoyt's Compound is now being explained every day here in this city at Wilder's Drug Store, and is also sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Daphne by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER LX.
“S O, after ten years more or less there wasn't any point in postponing it longer,” Flora was explaining. “And when I took one look at that woman who was supposed to be looking after the kids, I may not know much about kids, but I know more about that, weren't there six in our family?”
The three children, little steps, each a head taller than the other, looked at their new mother with stolid, curious eyes. The tall young man laughed.
“You haven't changed a bit, Flora,” still the same harem-scarim.
“Maybe you think you've grown up,” Flora teased. Across the tumbled trunk their eyes met. They leaned toward each other, Daphne with her hair in her eyes, and too much lipstick, the man in his shabby, shiny suit. The frowsy room melted away, the round-eyed children seemed to vanish something tugged at Daphne's heart, her throat ached, loneliness, bitter and black, swept over her.
Only a moment before Flora turned to her again, the children were chattering, the man was whistling as he dumped shoes, hats and hairpins promiscuously into the trunk. But in that little moment Daphne knew that Flora had the only thing in the world that mattered. The man she loved.
“He's the artist you told me about, the one who loved you when you were a girl, isn't he?” she asked.
And Flora answered, just as simply, “Yes; his wife ran away with somebody else two years ago. I wouldn't see him when I first heard he was here. I had it all fixed to marry Porter Webb, you know, and sit on a cushion and eat strawberries and cream. I was tired of being poor, and I didn't want to be Axel's second choice.” She spread her big, freckled hands. “But what's the use? You can't fight it. I always loved him.”
Axel Barton closed the trunk. The three little Bartons jumped on it, with whoops of joy. Flora watched them with shining eyes, and a queer, twisted smile. “And I used to hate him,” said I'd never have any of my own. Now I'm starting out with three. Look, doesn't life make fools of us?”
“Doesn't life make fools of us?” Flora asked Flora and her new husband had gone away and the house had settled to its Sunday quiet. Daphne sat in Flora's dismantled bed, thinking about it.
With the door open, had become an easel she put on her hat and went out in the sweet Summer day.
Along the quiet Sunday street, Daphne walked stopping to look in the shop windows, pausing to admire and nod at just as if she cared. There was a cross-eyed man in a window, better than the one she wanted so badly last Spring. A blue dress in a shop window. She and the money for it. When the money for it had gone, she had written a note to the shop. “Water before last,” and in the summer she had thought, hugging to toward the office. She could wait the long day working on Axel's papers. Maybe she could finish it. It would please Mr. Greely.
Mr. Greely was having his breakfast in bed. He liked leaning back against his pillows, balancing the morning papers against his bony knees, while he sipped the good, hot coffee the old butler brought him, and ate broiled butter. And, besides, it put off the unpleasant moment of meeting Sister Anne. Sunday, without the excuse of the office, was long enough at best.
On this particular morning, the morning that Daphne was on her way to the office, he enjoyed his breakfast more than usual. But he did not read the papers. Instead, he reached for his wallet, which he kept in his vest pocket.
And in the office, all unconscious of the struggle that was going on in Greely's mind, Daphne Haines made neat piles of Daphne's most personal belongings, the contents of the little black tin box.
There were newspaper clippings in one pile. The things we keep are such a giveaway. But the man, “Card Back on His Way to Recovery,” “Cardinal Captain Demon on Offense,” Daphne laid them aside swiftly. She knew some of the most florid almost by heart. There were the same clippings she had once collected. Stories of Ralph McKevitt, one-time Cardinal captain, the greatest halfback Stanford ever knew. There were pictures too. Ralph with a football under his arm. Ralph shaking hands with the coach. Ralph in the chair, his head bowed, adjusting his glasses, read three letters with many chirps and clucks of secret satisfaction.
“Henry,” he said, addressing the butler who was almost as old as he. “This is a great world, I'm an admirer of the Wilsonian doctrine, there are times when watching waiting is an interesting game.”
“Yes, sir,” said Henry. “More coffee, sir?”
“Ham—”
So Henry poured it, and departed with the remains of the fish. The old man sipped his coffee, selected a large very black cigar from the box beside his bed and puffed on it with immense satisfaction. The gentle summer wind turned the curtains lightly, the sun made pools of ruby light on the red velvet carpet on the floor. A pleasant day, a restful day.
Well, he could afford to rest. He thought complacently. He had done all that there was to do. It was in the lap of the Gods now, and not much longer to wait. “We'll see,” he mumbled, “we'll see.”
He fingered the three envelopes absent-mindedly, and a smile, half humorous, half wistful, touched his thin, pale lips. The three letters were all in the same hand writing, all addressed to him. Two bore South American postmarks, and one, the oldest one, was postmarked San Francisco. He opened that one again and read it through.
It was very short, just a few peepholes ones, scrawled on a sheet torn from a loose-leaf pocket note book.
“Dear Mr. Greely—
Will a u see to it that the contents of my desk in McKevitt's office are destroyed. Ever truly, but particularly the contents of the small tin box. The keys are on the ring on top of the desk or somewhere around the office. I expected to go back and take care of everything myself. I know what you will think of me for quitting this way. You can not despise me any more than I despise myself. Still I know that you will do this for me. Forgive my asking it, there is no one else.”
Allan
There came a tapping at the door, and Mrs. Colby's high, cracked voice calling, “John! Are you coming to church?”
The old man grimaced, and tucked the letters out of sight under the pillow.
The tapping began again. “John are you asleep?”
“If I was I'd be awake now!” he said grimly.
Mrs. Colby took that as an invitation to come in. “It's after ten,” she said, rustling into the room, and automatically straightening a crooked etching near the door. “Look at that! Tut, tut! That girl gets worse mad worse, she knows how I dislike a carelessly dusty picture. I found rolls of dust under the davenport in the drawing room. . . . rolls of it . . . look, John—that big—”
Mr. Greely shut his eyes. “John! Are you asleep?”
How can I sleep. Why don't you go to church if you're going, and quit nagging me, Anne? I gave strict orders to Henry that I was not to be disturbed. I'm resting.”
“You're not coming to church?” Mrs. Colby's cracked with indignation. She began to pull on her gloves with nervous little rushes that threatened to part the seams of the immaculate white kid.
“No.”
“Father Steele asked for you last week. It makes it very awkward for me, having to explain. Mrs. Redmond heard me, and said you must be feeling well—”
“Eh?”
“Yes she did. It was very humiliating for me. She said she noticed you always came when you were sick, and stayed away when you were well!”
He chuckled. “Nellie Redmond isn't as big a fool as she looks.”
“Mrs. Colby flushed angrily. “Yes, joke about sacred matters. Do! There'll come a time when you'll have plenty to explain, John Greely! And you needn't think any death-bed repentance is going to clear you, either! You're older than I am, and you're a fool! What do you think you are—God?”
Bang went the door, off went Sister Anne in a huff. He heard her small, angry feet tapping on the stairs, and presently the sound of the motor starting in the driveway. She was on her way.
The old man lay back on his pillows, a little tired. “Terrible woman,” he mumbled, “frigate!”
He thought over her last words, chuckling softly. Gradually the chuckle faded, a pucker appeared between his bushy brows. He reached for Allan's letter again. “Will you see to it that the contents of my desk in McKevitt's office are destroyed.” Allan had depended on him for that, and he, for reasons that seemed good and noble, had turned them over to Daphne Haines instead, putting a little of his fate for him, playing God.

LETTERS TO EDITOR
WANT STREET OILED
Editor, The Herald:—
We, the residents of Edison-ave., have been living in dust too long and therefore at this time we protest greatly and arise in revolt. We would like to inform the Hon. Mr. Miller, the supposed to be service director of our beautiful city, that Edison-ave., has not been oiled although every other little alley in town has, we ask, “What is the reason?” As Mr. Miller already is aware of the fact that a sewer was laid in Edison-ave., sometime ago, and the dirt and gravel settled, which is now coming to us in the form of dust. Aren't we just as respectable as the other people in the town? W realize this is a short note, but possibly Mr. Miller will feel shorter on August 14.
Respectfully,
The Residents of Edison-Ave.
Too Much Static
Little four-year-old Rosemary went to a nearby movie with her parents. The picture was showing a very exciting auto race and the audience was screaming and yelling, much to Rosemary's disgust. She said to her mother (with a finger pressed in each ear): “Mother, let's go home. I can't stand it. Too much static.”

WORLD'S GREATEST SCHOOL.

The late Charles A. Dana, in speaking of the art of newspaper editing, once remarked that the business of producing newspapers for fools was industriously and widely taken care of, but for his part he was trying to attract intelligent readers. At that time it may have been unusual for an editor to concern himself with the intelligence of his subscribers, but the world has moved.

The newspaper has become the greatest agency for public information and education in the world. It is a school which both adults and children gladly attend and its columns present continuous courses in contemporary history, economics, science, literature, music and every other worthwhile field of human interest. There are few truant from this great school. More than 35,000,000 copies of newspapers are bought and read every day in the United States and there are only about 88,000,000 families in this country.

Progress in modern society has made regular attendance in the school of the newspaper almost compulsory. Local horizons have been demolished by improved communications, rapid transportation and by international commercial and political bonds. World-wide horizons have taken their place. The corners of the earth are so closely linked together that the failure or success of the grain crop in European fields may determine whether the American farmer will purchase a new car or mortgage his homestead. In social and business contacts today, the intelligent man or woman is expected to be acquainted with the significant events which are taking place throughout the world.

The newspaper alone provides this indispensable information. It assembles accurate, comprehensive, unbiased news with a competence which is truly marvelous. No matter how small the orbit of our daily lives, the newspaper brings the whole world to our doorsteps.

GOOD NEWS FOR ANGLERS.

American anglers will be gratified to know that the Departments of the Interior and Commerce have made an arrangement whereby a fish culturist from the latter department will see to it that the streams and lakes of our national parks are kept full of fish.

In most parks the fishing is good enough already. But the presence of the government expert means that it will stay that way. Streams and lakes will not be allowed to become depleted. In some cases new varieties of fish can be introduced; in others, the stocks that are already present will be increased.

All in all, it looks pretty nice for the angler. The great sport of fishing is going to be preserved—as far as our national parks go, anyway.

FINDING OUT ABOUT STEEL.

The first steel skyscraper ever built is now being torn down in Chicago. Put up in 1887, it is now out of date, and is being removed so that a bigger structure can take its place.

Experts from the American Institute of Steel Construction are watching the demolition with great interest. For years there has been considerable discussion about the way a building's steel framework will endure the changes wrought by passing years. Some experts have thought one thing, some another; no one has been quite certain.

Now, however, they are going to get a chance to find out. Steel from this pioneer skyscraper will be put through all kinds of tests, so that the experts can tell definitely just what, if anything, has happened to it. The new knowledge thus gained will prove of great value in future steel construction work.

Then It's Stinginess.

Thrift is a fine trait in a man, but it can be overdone.—American Magazine.

Astronomers to Fire Rocket Toward Moon

Paris.—A rocket to the moon no longer is a fantasy and one may be fired from the earth before another year, according to members of the Societe Astronomique de France. German, American, Austrian and French scientists have been collaborating with such effectiveness that a voyage by rocket to the moon, to Mars and to Venus at last is considered theoretically practical.

Girl Lands Her Plane Despite Fear of Mice

Longmont, Colo.—When the medals are being passed around save one or two for Miss Blackwell, Longmont aviator.

Miss Blackwell, a student flyer, was taking lessons from her brother, Clyde, a licensed pilot.

Miss Blackwell was at the controls as the plane skimmed along at about 2,000 feet when Clyde noticed his sister acting queerly, but she kept the ship on an even keel and headed for the landing field.

And, according to Clyde, the faster his sister squirmed the faster the ship traveled until it finally reached the landing field.

Miss Blackwell landed the airplane, almost diving from the pilot's seat and extricated two field mice from her flying costume.

Although having a natural aversion to mice, Miss Blackwell endured the horror of having the creatures crawl over her while she brought the plane to a safe landing.

The mice apparently had built a home in the plane while it was stored in its hangar.

Fortune in Ambergis Found Floating at Beach

London.—The greed of a whale which died from acute indigestion has provided London with the largest lump of ambergis yet seen by dealers.

It weighs about 225 pounds, and is worth nearly $50,000. For perfumery purposes it is worth anything up to $25 per ounce.

This record lump was found on a New Zealand beach by two brothers who will make a small fortune by the discovery.

Ambergis is the product of the sperm whale's fondness of cuttlefish. He cannot digest the beak of the cuttlefish, so the beaks accumulate and set up irritation, which causes the ambergis to form. Eventually the whale distends, becomes ill and blows up. The ambergis floats away and it may be years before it is washed ashore.

Waiter Famous as Poet Dies in Genoa

Genoa.—Giovanni Giorgi, the poet-waiter and Dante scholar of Milan who would improvise a sonnet on the back of your luncheon bill, or quote a page of Dante, while serving glasses of beer, is dead.

Giorgi was a well-known figure of Milanese Bohemian life, and for many years the small restaurant where he served as waiter was the rendezvous of students, writers, artists and even professors of Dante studies and literature.

The poet-waiter had an amazing memory as well as an excellent literary taste. He could recite the entire "Divine Comedy" from beginning to end, and make comments on the works of the great Florentine poet which delighted learned professors of the university, who often gathered in the restaurant to hear and see the phenomenon.

Toil, Trouble Come to Pair Even in Prayer

Red Bluff, Calif.—Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Bishop, ranchers of the Los Robles section near here, feel that they have had more than their share of trouble.

Two years ago Mrs. Bishop sprained her ankle and was forced to use crutches for a year. Then her husband cut a deep gash in his foot with an axe while cutting wood. Before he had recovered from this injury he was severely hurt when his machine skidded off the Dibble creek bridge and was wrecked. The frost recently wiped out the Bishop's prune crop, and now Mrs. Bishop has been forced to bed with a broken rib as a result of falling while rising from prayer at the Cone church.

Thinks Teacher Unfair; Pulls Her Hair; Fined

Milwaukee.—Mrs. Harriet Grube was fined $20 at Waukesha, Wis., following conviction by a jury of pulling the hair of Miss Leora Weiss, nineteen, a school teacher at Menominee, Wis., and dragging her across the road from that town to Lisbon.

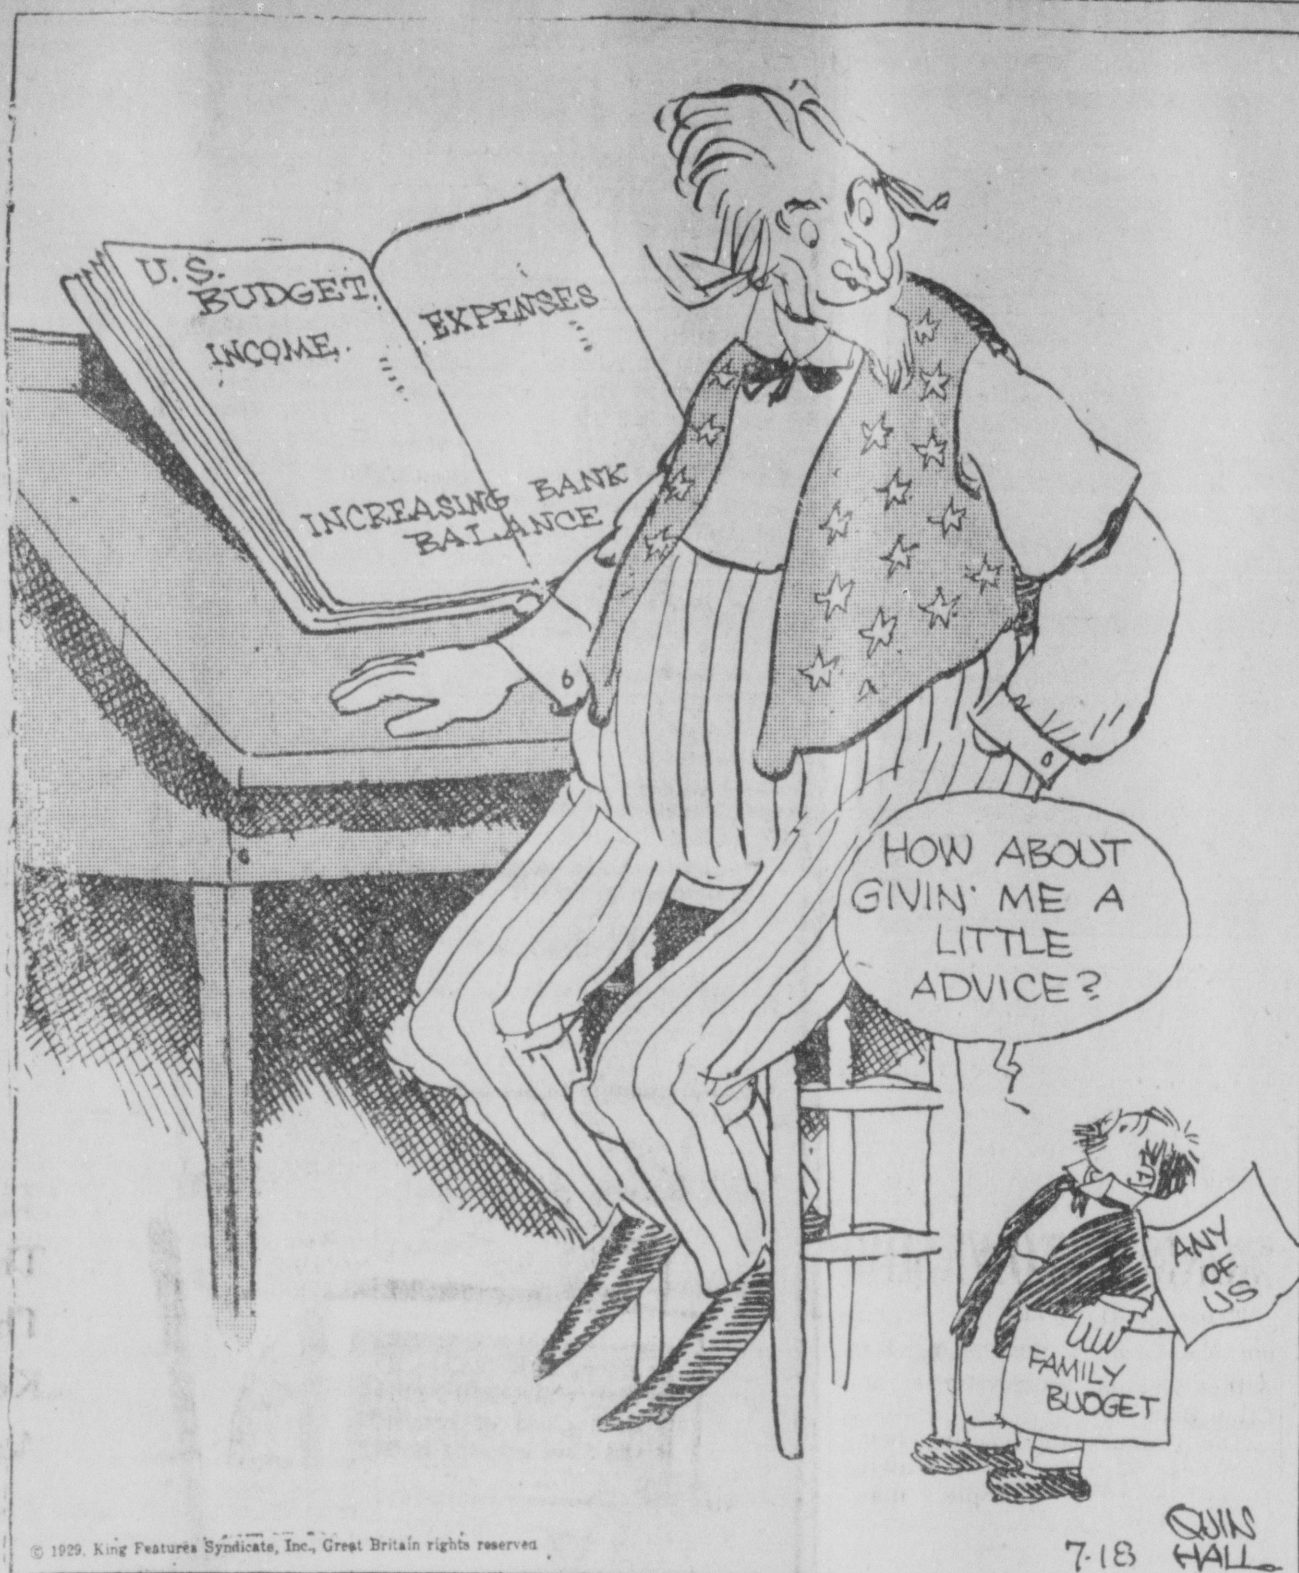

The teacher testified Mrs. Grube, at whose home she formerly lived, attacked her in an argument over what she claimed was the teacher's "unfairness" to one of her children.

Latest Fad in Paris Is Gambling Dance

Paris.—The gambling dance has arrived as the latest Parisian fad. The floor of the dance hall is marked out in numbered squares, like a roulette table. A roulette wheel spins on the wall. When it stops spinning the dance ends and the dancer who happens to be standing on the square corresponding to the number on the wheel wins. Money, dolls and other souvenirs are given as prizes.

Famous in Fiance

Wall street, New York, takes its name from the location of an old wall erected by the early Dutch settlers as a protection to their property.

Daphne by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER LX.

"So, after ten years more or less there wasn't any point in postponing it longer," Flora was explaining. "And when I took one look at that woman who was supposed to be looking after the kids, I may not know much about kids, but I know more than that, weren't there six in our family?"

The three children, little steps, each a head taller than the other, looked at their new mother with stolid, curious eyes. The tall young man laughed.

"You haven't changed a bit, Flora . . . still the same harem-scaram—"

"Maybe you think you've grown up!" Flora teased. Across the tumbled trunk their eyes met. They leaned toward each other, Flora with her hair in her eyes, and too much lipstick, the man in his shabby, shiny suit. The frowzy room melted away, the round-eyed children seemed to vanish . . .

Something tugged at Daphne's heart, her throat ached, loneliness, bitter and black, swept over her.

Only a moment before Flora turned to her again, the children were chattering, the man was whistling as he dumped shoes, hats and hairpins promiscuously into the trunk. But in that little moment Daphne knew that Flora had the only thing in the world that mattered. The man she loved.

"He's the artist you told me about, the one who loved you, you were a girl, isn't he?" she asked.

And Flora answered, just as simply, "Yes; his wife ran away with somebody else two years ago. I wouldn't see him when I first heard he was here. I was all fixed to marry Porter Webb, you know, and sit on a cushion and eat strawberries and cream. . . . I was tired of being poor, and I didn't want to be Axel's second choice. . . . She spread her big, freckled hands. "But what's the use? You can't fight it. I always loved him—"

Axel Barton closed the trunk. The three little Bartons jumped on it, with whoops of joy. Flora watched them with shining eyes, and smiled with a twisted smile. And I used to hate kids, she said. I never have any of my own. Now I'm starting out with three. . . . Lord, doesn't life make fools of us?"

"Doesn't life make fools of us?" Long after Flora and her new husband had gone away and the house had settled to its Sunday quiet, Daphne sat in Flora's dismantled room, thinking about it.

When the loneliness had become unbearable she put on her hat and went out in the sweet Summer day.

Along the quiet Sunday streets Daphne walked stopping to look in the shop windows, pausing to admire and notice prices—just as if she cared. There was a cross-few in a furrier's window, prettier than the one she wanted so badly last Spring. A blue dress in a sport shop . . . blue, her color, Ralph said. . . . She had the money for it now, when the need for it had passed. A lot it mattered now whether she wore Winter-before-last's coat, and last Summer's hat.

"Thank heaven for work!" she thought, hurrying on toward the office. She could kill the long day working on Allan's papers. Maybe she could finish. . . . it would please Mr. Greely. . . .

Mr. Greely was having his breakfast in bed. He liked leaning back against his pillows, balancing the morning papers against his bony knees, while he sipped the good, hot coffee the old butler brought him, and ate broiled herring swimming in melted butter. And, besides, it put off the unpleasant moment of meeting Sister Anne. Sunday, without the excuse of the office, was long enough at best.

On this particular morning, the morning that Daphne was on her way to the office, he enjoyed his breakfast more than usual. But he did not read the papers. Instead, he reached for his wallet, which he kept in his vest pocket.

And in the office, all unconscious of the struggle that was going on in Greely's mind, Daphne Haines made neat piles of Allan's most personal belongings, the contents of the little black tin box.

There were newspaper clippings in one pile. The things we keep are such a giveaway . . . but Allan's all pertained to another man. "Card Halfback on His Way to Recovery." "Cardinal Captain Demon on Offense." "McKevitt for All American." Daphne laid them aside swiftly. She knew some of the most florid almost by heart. They were the same clippings she had once collected. . . . stories of Ralph McKevitt. . . . time Cardinal captain, the great halfback Stanford every knew.

There were pictures too. Ralph with a football under his arm. Ralph shaking hands with the coach. Ralph on the chair beside him, and adjusting his glasses, read three letters with many chirps and clucks of secret satisfaction.

"Henry," he said, addressing the butler who was almost as old as he. "This is a great world, I'm an admirer of the Wilsonian doctrine, there are times when watchful waiting is an interesting game. . . . hah!"

"Yes, sir," said Henry. "More coffee, sir?"

"Hah—"

So Henry poured it, and departed with the remains of the fish. The old man sipped his coffee, selected a large very black cigar from the box beside his bed and puffed on it with immense satisfaction. The gentle summer wind stirred the curtains lightly, the sun made pools of ruby light on the red velvet carpet on the floor. A pleasant day, a restful day.

Well, he could afford to rest, he thought complacently. He had done all that there was to do. It was in the lap of the Gods now, and not much longer to wait. "We'll see," he mumbled, we'll see."

He fingered the three envelopes absent-mindedly, and a smile, half humorous, half wistful, touched his thin, pale lips. The three letters were all in the same hand-writing, all addressed to him. Two bore South American postmarks, and one, the oldest one, was postmarked San Francisco. He opened that one again and read it through.

It was very short, just a few pencilled lines, scrawled on a sheet torn from a loose-leaf pocket notebook.

"Dear Mr. Greely— Will you see to it that the contents of my desk in McKevitt's office are destroyed. Everything, but particularly the contents of the small tin box. The keys are on the ring on top of the desk or somewhere around the office. I expected to go back and take care of everything myself. I know what you will think of me for quitting this way. You can not despise me any more than I despise myself. Still I know that you will do this for me. Forgive my asking it, there is no one else.

Allan"

There came a tapping at the door, and Mrs. Colby's high, cracked voice calling, "John! Are you coming to church?"

The tapping began again. "John are you asleep?"

"If I was I'd be awake now!" he said grimly.

Mrs. Colby took that as an invitation to come in. "It's after ten," she said, rustling into the room, and automatically straightening a crooked etching near the door. "Look at that! Tut, tut! That girl gets worse and worse, she knows how I dislike a carelessly dusty picture. I found rolls of dust under the davenport in the drawing room . . . rolls of it . . . look, John—that big—"

"Mr. Greely shut his eyes. "John! Are you asleep?"

"How can I sleep? Why don't you go to church if you're going, and quit nagging me, Anne? I gave strict orders to Henry that I was not to be disturbed. I'm resting."

"You're not coming to church?" Mrs. Colby's cracked with indignation. She began to pull on her gloves with nervous little rushes that threatened to part the seams of the immaculate white kid.

"No."

"Father Steele asked for you last week. It makes it very awkward for me, having to explain. Mrs. Redmond nag me, and said you must be feeling well—"

"Eh?"

"Yes she did. It was very humiliating for me. She said she noticed you always came when you were sick, and stayed away when you were well!"

He chuckled. "Nellie Redmond isn't as big a fool as she looks."

Mrs. Colby flushed angrily. "Yes, joke about sacred matters. Do! There'll come a time when you'll have plenty to explain, John Greely! And you needn't think any death-bed repentance is going to clear you, either! You're altogether too sure of yourself, and too sure everybody else is a fool! What do you think you are—God?"

Bang went the door, off went Sister Anne in a huff. He heard her small, angry feet tapping on the stairs, and presently the sound of the motor starting in the driveway. She was on her way. . . . The old man lay back on his pillows, a little tired. "Terrible woman," he mumbled, "fright!"

He thought over her last words, chuckling softly. Gradually the chuckle faded, a pucker appeared between his bushy brows. He reached for Allan's letter again. . . . "Will you see to it that the contents of my desk in McKevitt's office are destroyed." Allan had depended on him for that, and he, for reasons that seemed good and sufficient, had turned them over to Daphne Haines instead. . . . juggling with Allan's future, deciding his fate for him. . . . playing God!

FREED FROM JAIL

Bernard Nebel, Circleville, who was arrested July 4 by Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell on a charge of reckless driving and who was given a hearing before Squire E. C. Friece, who fined him $10 and costs, was released from the county jail Tuesday afternoon after serving out his time.

Mrs. Gertrude Saunders of Millersport, Ky., is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Ella Crites of E. Main-st. Mrs. Saunders was formerly Miss Gertrude Dunlap of Circleville.

Doctor Found What is Best for Thin, Constipated People

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their diseases were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

J. B. Caldwell, M.D.
AT AGE 83

In the course of his 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with peepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in his private practice. Now the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year. Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed. Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

CORN CROP IS ON DECREASE

Winter Wheat Has 100 Per Cent Increase, Preliminary Estimates Show.

COLUMBUS, O., July 16 (INS)—A considerable change is shown in the preliminary crop average estimates for Ohio, issued by G. S. Ray of the Federal Crop Reporting service, of this year against those of 1922.

In 1922, following the very heavy of abandonment of winter wheat acreage, oats and barley showed large increase and the corn acreage was appreciably greater. This season the present estimates show the following changes from last year: Corn 3 per cent decrease; winter wheat 100 per cent increase; oats 28 per cent decrease; barley 62 per cent decrease; rye, 100 per cent increase; sugar beets 29 per cent decrease; tobacco 20 per cent increase; potatoes, 2 per cent decrease; tame hay 9 per cent increase; soy beans 5 per cent increase; buckwheat 5 per cent increase.

Ohio corn this month gave promise of a crop of 139,712,000 bushels which is slightly above the average. Production last year was 136,725,000 bushels; the five year average is 137,122,000 bushels.

A three percent reduction in acreage planted was noticed in comparison with the acreage planted last year. The present estimate being 3,537,000 acres.

Winter wheat in Ohio was very promising July 1, and its present condition indicates an increase surpassed only four times in the past 63 years. The revised estimate of the acreage for harvest this season is 1,728,000, or 20 bushels to the acre. The five year average is taken from the period between 1923 and 1927.

Ohio planted 1,737,000, which is near the normal acreage sown in the state. This year's planting is 28 per cent less than last year's acreage. Oats condition July 1, was only 73 per cent of normal compared with 5 per cent one year ago. 67,388,000 bushels is the ten year average.

Barley promised a crop of 3,276,000 bushels compared with 9,191,000 bushels in 1922. Last year the acreage was far above normal. Barley condition July 1, was 77 per cent normal, or five per cent below normal.

Rye promises a crop of 1,018,000 bushels against a crop of 399,000 bushels in 1922.

The potato crop in Ohio is estimated to be less than a year ago. The forecast is 11,471,000 against 12,054,000 in 1922.

Safer

The famous man was furious when he found a pile of paving stones outside his front door. "Here, you!" he said to a navvy standing near. "Take these things away at once."

"All right, guv'nor, all right," said the navvy. "But where shall I take 'em to?"

"Take 'em to hell for all I care," came the indignant reply.

"Adn't I better take 'em to 'even guv'nor," said the navvy helpfully. "The'd be more out of your way."

No Stop Sign

Little Charles only three years old, likes to visit his grandmother who lives in English avenue. He can go out his back gate and across the alley to her back gate very easily. He and his little brother and sister are quarantined with the whooping cough, therefore he can not go visiting. He was begging his mother to let him go to grandma's when she told him he could not go over there while the sign was on the house.

Charles quickly replied: "The sign isn't on the back of the house"—Indianapolis News.

Seeks Now Refuge

Mlle. Maryse Bastie, French aviatrix, is undertaking a second assault on the world's endurance record for women. Her first try at Paris was unsuccessful when she had motor trouble.

MONROE TOWNSHIP

Those on the sick list at present are Louise Zimmerman, Mrs. Althea Dennis, Allen Keller and Lillie Busic.

The Union campmeeting being held near Five Points is drawing large crowds of people, many coming from Columbus, Sedalia, London and Mt. Sterling. Rev. Ferneau is an excellent preacher and his daughter, Miss Mildred, is the song leader. Services each week night also an all day service and basket dinner next Sunday, July 21. Come and enjoy this gospel feast.

Rev. Neff, of Cincinnati, will hold two preaching services in P. H. church July 21.

Francis Baker, one of our home boys, will be married to Miss Evelyn Ward in her home church in Madisonville at 2.30 p.m. July 20, preceding a reception at the home of the bride's parents near Hyde Park, Cincinnati, where they will make their home for a while. Several guests have been invited from this community. They have our best wishes for a long and happy life together.

Rev. D. E. Hatfield, of Marion, who recently spent a few weeks' vacation at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Hatfield, assisted in a large church wedding at the Evangelical church on Bellefontaine Ave., Marion, O., at 10 o'clock, July 14.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle Longebone and Mr. and Mrs. James Longebone of Columbus, spent Saturday night with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Longebone, and Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Crawford, returning to their homes Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hatfield and daughter Loretta Jean, of Marion, spent the week-end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Raeburn and Mr. and Mrs. Hatfield also visited the aged and afflicted father, Mr. Gumper in Chillicothe.

Clarence Wing, of Springfield, spent Sunday visiting friends near here.

The song of the threshing machine also the mower, is being heard in the land these days. The farmers are very busy as most of the corn is to be plowed once more.

We are glad to learn that Rev. Weiser is again able to assume a portion of his usual pastoral duties after so long and serious an indisposition following a major operation some time since.

The baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Angle was operated upon for adenoids and enlarged tonsils Monday. She is making a splendid recovery.

Naval Academy Custom

Above the altar of the United States Naval Academy's chapel is one of the most exquisite wood carvings in America. It is a singular beauty in lines and coloring and portrays the Savior walking on the water, his figure being one of remarkable tenderness and majesty. One of the traditions of service in the chapel is that each official service shall end with the hymn, "Eternal Father, Strong to Save."

VENTILATING PLANTS IN HOMES OF FUTURE

Dr. Copeland Agrees With Correspondent That Air Systems Will Soon Be in Popular Use to Further the Health of Humans.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

YOU must have a "crack in the eye" now and then as a warning to keep on the right track. It is more than easy to jog along in the same old way, fondly imagining everything is as it should be.

What caused this outbreak of mine is a letter just received from a man who is devoting himself to ventilation. He started out with some complimentary remarks about these articles, but they proved to be nothing more than the sugar-coating of a criticism. Let me quote:

"I note you quite frequently use a term that I believe scientific men should delete from their vocabulary. I refer to the expression 'fresh air.' There is no such thing. Air is a more or less definite mixture of certain gases that do not change with time. Air may be warm or cool, dirty or clean, humid or dry, etc., but scientifically speaking, it is never 'fresh.'"

This is rather interesting, I think. Suppose I quote a little more from this thought-provoking letter.

"Fresh milk direct from the cow; vegetables from the garden, or fruit ripened on the tree are, of course, ideal. But our modern civilization requires pasteurized milk, filtered and chlorinated water, and many other refrigerated and artificially ripened products. No one questions the improved health conditions of city inhabitants from these artificial aids in bringing these necessary food products to the table in proper condition."

That is good sense, isn't it? I am sure we can endorse every word of it. But let us have another paragraph from the letter:

"Air in the country on a June morning is ideal. But city air is never ideal at any time. City air must always be cleaned, warmed, cooled, humidified or de-humidified, or otherwise treated as the specific case demands, to make it best suited to our health and well being."

I have no question that the city home of the future will have air conditioning systems, just the same as they now have central heat. There is just as much reason for making the air proper for human breathing as there is for making the temperature a comfortable one.

I shall say more about this in the future. In the meantime I thank our correspondent, for I am sure you do, for this thought-provoking letter.

Answers to Health Queries

M. I. G. H. Q.—Do you advise treatment for indigestion or pin worms?

A.—Yes. For further information send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

C. E. M. Q.—What should a girl weigh who is nineteen years old and five feet three inches tall?

A.—For your age and height you should weigh about 121 pounds.

A. T. H. Q.—What are the symptoms, cause and cure for low blood pressure?

A.—What is responsible for numbness in the hands and feet at night?

K. D. Q.—How much should a girl aged fourteen, five feet tall, weigh. Also a woman aged thirty-eight, five feet four inches tall, and a boy aged twelve, five feet two inches tall, weigh?

A.—They should weigh respectively about 108, 137 and 102 pounds.

MISS F. L. Q.—What would cause a continual dred feeling, no matter how much I sleep? I am on a diet to no avail.

A.—Auto-intoxication would cause this condition. Be sure to keep the system clear by eating of a proper diet, drinking copiously of water between meals and by taking some regular exercise daily.

ROBTOWN

Don't forget that next Sunday, July 21st, is our annual community gathering at our church. Anyone is welcome to bring something to help out with the dinner and enjoy the day together, maybe see an old friend you have not seen for some time and listen to some good talks and music and all together pass a profitable and pleasant day.

Several families in this vicinity are quite busy just at present, thrashing and making hay and plowing corn.

Mr. and Mrs. John Florence of Columbus took supper Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Johnson and family.

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Wigginton of Washington C. H. were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Rowe and family.

Mrs. O. L. Shover, Columbus, (nee Lois Rowe) and son called on a number of her friends in this community last Friday.

Art's Definition

Shakespeare but not art? He was bad by art; compelled and held by it. And by that holding and compulsion we get a vision of what art is: not a system, not a set of rules which perchance Aristotle might teach us, or another Greek, but a changing, growing form-compelling power that is individual but at its greatest expresses an age.

This was the great age of English, never repeated in its aggregate of color, wealth, diction and power of words.—Henry Chester Tracy, in "English as Experience."

Keep Hold of Temper

Temper is valuable to man just so far as he can control it. Keep well in leash, it develops into will-power, determination. Permitted to rage unchecked, it saps vitality, ruins disposition, and becomes a general nuisance.—G. H.

GAMES TONIGHT
C. A. C. vs Ohio Utilities at Utilities Park.
Eveland Nine vs Motor Transports at Mason's Field.

Probably one of the most unexpected victories in the Recreation Ball League was the one that came Wednesday when the cellar team defeated the top team by the big score of 12 to 3. The Lutheran Brotherhood won its victory in the first inning when they made a record of scoring 8 runs. This victory shoves the Coca Colas completely out of first place and they are forced to go in to second. The Ohio Utilities are now in the lead. Timmy Kline, of the Brotherhood, was credited with 23 put-outs. The Coca Colas were credited with 6 errors, which no doubt lost the game. The Brotherhood played a very strong defense until the last. But regardless of the victory the Brotherhood is still in the cellar.

MERCHANTS WIN
In a fast and furious game Wednesday evening the Circleville Merchants defeated the Pettit Tires by a score of 7 to 0. This is the first time that the Tires have been held scoreless and they are forced to flee to seventh place. Both teams played a strong defense but the Merchants outplayed the Tires in every way. The Tires are rapidly falling to the bottom.

Gulf Stream Temperature
The temperature of the Gulf stream is several degrees higher than that of neighboring oceans. Water has a remarkably high heat capacity. It is four times that of air, five times that of earth. The water of the Gulf stream carries its accumulated heat, derived from the tropical sun, for a long time, and to great distances, giving it out gradually to the air.

TURN IN ROAD IS NOW FACED BY LOUGHRAN

Fight With Braddock Thursday Night Will Determine Champ's Future.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

I. N. S. Sports Editor.
NEW YORK, July 18.—A champion of the world, a fighting champion and a good one, will stand at the cross road of his career tonight and, by the choice he makes, either will go forward and upward to greater things or backward and downward to the inevitable limbo of pugilism's forgotten. Tommy Loughran, they say, is at the crisis of his young life.

He will defend his light heavyweight title for the seventh time in a year and a half in a 15 round fight with Jimmy Braddock at the Yankee stadium tonight and the ghouls who relish the end of an old dynasty are all a-twitter at the thought that it may turn out to be one defense too many. Braddock not only is the strongest challenger the man has faced but the man himself is presumed to be ready for the old laundry bag. Just off two unimpressive fights with Armand Emmanuel and Mickey Walker, the champion is believed by many to have left the best of him on a set of coldly impersonal scales that will demand 175 pounds at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

WEIGHT HAS HURT

The demand probably will be met but they say it will not be a keen, strong and brash Loughran who will do it. If you string with their notion, the weigh-in rendezvous will be kept by a bloodless, tottering champion, weak to the point of incipient collapse. I am disinclined to believe it. Loughran's weight-making is no dance of the sprites at dawing. He did around 187 pounds for Ernie Echaaf not so long ago and the 11 pounds he shed in the meantime undoubtedly represent self-imposed cruelty that only a religious fanatic or a champion fighter would undergo.

The ritual has hurt Loughran or they wouldn't be giving Braddock the chance that they do. He is about even money in the betting today, an unusual circumstance in connection with a championship fight, and he may even go in there as the popular favorite. A great right hand puncher and a young man who may be about to come overnight, much as Tunney did, Braddock is a challenger of distinct possibilities.

But Loughran hasn't been wrong yet about either an opponent or the matter of making weight. He bats an even 1,000 both ways and it may be significant that, faced with a chance for the heavyweight championship he took the Braddock fight without demur. No man, figuring on the heavyweight title, would wilfully let himself in for a defeat in the class below. If Loughran is wrong I'm willing to bet. He at least can make one more fight for what money I have.

Pictorial Golf Instruction

By H. B. MARTIN

A LONG SWEEPING SWING MEANS LONG DRIVE

PHILIP'S FINLAY is one of the longest drivers in the game. He is sure to make his mark in amateur golf in America.

Young Finlay as a long sweeping swing, but he keeps the club in the proper path all the way. It will be noticed that he finished with his hands high above the level of his head. This indicates that he also holds them the same height at the top of his swing, a la Bobby Jones, who has a long sweep to his swing.

Both Finlay and Jones are up-right swingers, of course, and usually hit a straight ball as well as a long one.

Matter of Relationship

Half brothers and sisters have one parent in common. Stepbrothers and sisters have no parent in common. When a man with children marries a woman with children these children are stepbrothers and sisters to each other. A child or children resulting from the union of this man and woman would be half brothers or sisters to each of the other sets of children.

Alibi for Mother

The mother of any normal child has two reasons from which she may derive comfort on not infrequent occasions; she can think either that the little thing takes after its father exclusively or that a mistake must have been made at the hospital and they gave her the wrong baby.—Ohio State Journal.

BUSKIRK WILL BATTLE HILL

Substitute For Moats Expected To Take Opponent To Camp In Main Co.

Tonight at Scippo Park there will be no punch pulling when Mason Buskirk, Circleville, and K. O. Hill tie up in the main go. Buskirk, who substitutes for Kid Moats, is confident that he can whip Hill any day in the week. This fight should be a real scrap, for both boys are out for blood and a real battle is forecast.

In the semi-finals Kid Brown, of Chillicothe, will meet Kid Mexico. This also promises to be a pretty lively scrap for Kid Mexico has fought several other fights and has been successful in every one of them.

Shorty Everetts, that little scrapper from Yellowbud, is also on the card and it is almost needless to say much about Shorty because he says most of it in the ring to the other man. He is known as a fast hitting fighter. There are also two fast preliminaries and a real evening full of entertainment for fight fans who want to see hard fought fights. All of these fights will be three rounds and there promises to be plenty of action in them. The fights start promptly at 8:30 o'clock and it would be best if fans were there early so as to avoid any traffic congestion.

Irreverent Youth

A man who was golfing on a Scots course, and playing very badly, too, was at some points to impress upon his caddy that he usually showed very much better form.

After taking twelve to one hole, he said, defensively, that he had accomplished it in four the previous day. "What?" exclaimed the caddy. "It's true," said the player, "with my third I lay dead on the green."

"Aye," said the boy, "with surprise, no doubt."

GAMES TONIGHT
C. A. C. vs Ohio Utilities at Utilities Park.
Eveland Nine vs Motor Transport at Mason's Field.

Probably one of the most unexpected victories in the Recreation Ball League was the one that came Wednesday when the cellar team defeated the top team by the big score of 12 to 3. The Lutheran Brotherhood won its victory in the first inning when they made a record of scoring 8 runs. This victory shoves the Coca Colas completely out of first place and they are forced to go in to second. The Ohio Utilities are now in the lead. Timmy Kline, of the Brotherhood, was credited with 23 put-outs. The Coca Colas were cut-down with 6 errors, which no doubt lost the game. The Brotherhood played a very strong defense until the last. But regardless of the victory the Brotherhood is still in the cellar.

TURN IN ROAD IS NOW FACED BY LOUGHRAN

Fight With Braddock Thursday Night Will Determine Champ's Future.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

I. N. S. Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, July 12.—A champion of the world, a fighting champion and a good one, will stand at the cross road of his career tonight and, by the choice he makes, either will go forward and upward to greater things or backward and downward to the inevitable limbo of pugilism's forgotten. Tommy Loughran, they say, is at the crisis of his young life.

He will defend his light heavyweight title for the seventh time in a year and a half in a 15 round fight with Jimmy Braddock at the Yankee stadium tonight and the ghoulies who relish the end of an old dynasty are all a-twitter at the thought that it may turn out to be one defense too many. Braddock not only is the strongest challenger the man has faced but the man himself is presumed to be ready for the old laundry bag. Just off two unimpressive fights with Armand Emmanuel and Mickey Walker, the champion is believed by many to have left the best of him on a set of coldly impersonal scales that will demand 175 pounds at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

WEIGHT HAS HURT

The demand probably will be met but they say it will not be a keen, strong and brash Loughran who will do it. If you string with their notion, the weigh-in rendezvous will be kept by a bloodless, tottering champion, weak to the point of incipient collapse. I am disinclined to believe it. Loughran's weight-making is no dance of the sprites at dawdling. He did around 187 pounds for Ernie Echaaf not so long ago and the 11 pounds he shed in the meantime undoubtedly represent self-imposed cruelty that only a religious fanatic or a champion fighter would undergo.

The ritual has hurt Loughran or they wouldn't be giving Braddock the chance that they do. He is about even money in the betting today, an unusual circumstance in connection with a championship fight, and he may even go in there as the popular favorite. A great right hand puncher and a young man who may be about to come overnight, much as Tunney did, Braddock is a challenger of distinct possibilities.

But Loughran hasn't been wrong yet about either an opponent or the matter of making weight. He bats an even 1,000 both ways and it may be significant that, faced with a chance for the heavyweight championship he took the Braddock fight without demur. No man, figuring on the heavyweight title, would wilfully let himself in for a defeat in the class below. If Loughran is wrong I'm willing to be. He at least can make one more fight for what money I have.

Pictorial Golf Instruction

By H. B. MARTIN

A LONG SWEEPING SWING MEANS LONG DRIVE

PHILIP'S FINLAY is one of the longest drives in the game. He is sure to make his mark in amateur golf in America.

Young Finlay as a long sweeping swing, but he keeps the club in the proper path all the way. It will be noticed that he finished with his hands high above the level of his head. This indicates that he also holds them the same height at the top of his swing, a la Bobby Jones, who has a long sweep to his swing.

Both Finlay and Jones are up-right swingers, of course, and usually hit a straight ball as well as a long one. (© 1929, Bell Syndicate.)

Matter of Relationship

Half brothers and sisters have one parent in common. Stepbrothers and sisters have no parent in common. When a man with children marries a woman with children these children are stepbrothers and sisters to each other. A child or children resulting from the union of this man and woman would be half brothers or sisters to each of the other sets of children.

Alibi for Mother

The mother of any normal child has two reasons from which she may derive comfort on not infrequent occasions; she can think either that the little thing takes after its father exclusively or that a mistake must have been made at the hospital and they gave her the wrong baby. —Ohio State Journal.

BUSKIRK WILL BATTLE HILL

Substitute For Moats Expected To Take Opponent To Camp In Mair Go.

Tonight at Seippo Park there will be no punch pulling when Mason Buskirk, Circleville, and K. O. Hill tie up in the main go.

Buskirk, who substitutes for Kid Moats, is confident that he can whip Hill any day in the week. This fight should be a real scrap, for both boys are out for blood and a real battle is forecast. In the semi-finals Kid Brown, of Chillicothe, will meet Kid Mexico. This also promises to be a pretty lively scrap for Kid Mexico has fought several other fights and has been successful in every one of them.

Shorty Everetts, that little scrapper from Yellowbud, is also on the card and it is almost needless to say much about Shorty because he says most of it in the ring to the other man. He is known as a fast hitting fighter. There are also two fast preliminaries and a real evening full of entertainment for fight fans who want to see hard fought fights.

All of these fights will be three rounds and there promises to be plenty of action in them. The fights start promptly at 8:30 o'clock and it would be best if fans were there early so as to avoid any traffic congestion.

Irreverent Youth

A man who was golfing on a Scots course, and playing very badly, too, was at some pains to impress upon his caddy that he usually showed very much better form.

After taking twelve to one hole, he said, defensively, that he had accomplished it in four the previous day.

"What?" exclaimed the caddy. "It's true," said the player, "with my third I lay dead on the green."

"Aye," said the boy, "with surprise, no doubt."

VENTILATING PLANTS IN HOMES OF FUTURE

Dr. Copeland Agrees With Correspondent That Air Systems Will Soon Be in Popular Use to Further the Health of Humans.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

YOU must have a "crack in the eye" now and then as a warning to keep on the right track. It is more than easy to jog along in the same old way, fondly imagining everything is as it should be.

What caused this outbreak of mine is a letter just received from a man who is devoting himself to ventilation. He started out with some complimentary remarks about these articles, but they proved to be nothing more than the sugar-coating of a criticism. Let me quote:

"I note you quite frequently use a term that I believe scientific men should delete from their vocabulary. I refer to the expression 'fresh air.' There is no such thing. Air is a more or less definite mixture of certain gases that do not change with time. Air may be warm or cool, dirty or clean, humid or dry, etc., but scientifically speaking, it is never fresh."

This is rather interesting, I think. Suppose I quote a little more from this thought-provoking letter:

"Fresh milk direct from the cow; vegetables from the garden, or fruit ripened on the tree are, of course, ideal. But our modern civilization requires pasteurized milk, filtered and chlorinated water, and many other vitigerated and artificially ripened products. No one questions the improved health conditions of city inhabitants from these artificial aids in bringing these necessary food products to the table in proper condition."

That is good sense, isn't it? I am sure we can endorse every word of it. But let us have another paragraph from the letter:

"Air in the country on a June morning is ideal. But city air is never ideal at any time. City air must always be cleaned, warmed, cooled, humidified or de-humidified, or otherwise treated as the specific case demands, to make it best suited to our health and well being."

I have no question that the city home of the future will have air conditioning systems, just the same as they now have central heat. There is just as much reason for making the air proper for human breathing as there is for making the temperature comfortable one. I shall say more about this in the future. In the meantime I thank our correspondent, as I am sure you do, for this thought-provoking letter.

M. I. G. H. Q.—Do you advise treatment for intestinal or pin worms?

A.—Yes. For further information send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

C. E. M. Q.—What should a girl weigh who is nineteen years old and five feet three inches tall?

A.—For your age and height you should weigh about 121 pounds.

A. T. H. Q.—What are the symptoms of cause and cure for low blood pressure?

A.—What is responsible for numbness in the hands and feet at night?

A.—Low vitality, dizziness, depressed spirits and headache are among the outstanding symptoms. Some infection is at the source, as a general rule. The treatment depends upon the cause.

2.—Poor circulation is the usual cause. Improve the general health and the circulation will improve. Massage and application of heat should give increased comfort meanwhile.

3.—Not as a general rule, although the location has much to do with the nature and seriousness of the trouble. This would also have much to do with the treatment. Follow your doctor's advice.

K. D. Q.—How much should a girl aged fourteen, five feet tall, weigh. Also a woman aged thirty-eight, five feet four inches tall, and a boy aged twelve, five feet two inches tall, weigh?

A.—They should weigh respectively about 108, 131 and 102 pounds.

MISS F. L. Q.—What would cause a continual tired feeling, no matter how much I sleep? I am on a diet to no avail.

A.—Auto-intoxication would cause this condition. Be sure to keep the system clear by eating of a proper diet, drinking copiously of water between meals and by taking some regular exercise daily.

ROBTOWN

Don't forget that next Sunday, July 21st, is our annual community gathering at our church. Anyone is welcome to bring something to help out with the dinner and enjoy the day together, maybe see an old friend you have not seen for some time and listen to some good talks and music and all together pass a profitable and pleasant day.

Several families in this vicinity are quite busy just at present, thrashing and making hay and plowing corn.

Mr. and Mrs. John Florence of Columbus took supper Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Johnson and family.

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Wiggington of Washington C. H. were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Rowe and family.

Mrs. O. L. Shover, Columbus, (nee Lois Rowe) and son called on a number of her friends in this community last Friday.

Miss Lula O'Hara, student at Ashland visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Hara from Saturday until Monday.

Mrs. Laura Trout of Marion, O. spent several days the past week at the home of her brother, Thomas and family.

A very pleasant evening was passed last Tuesday at our C. E. social and business meeting at the home of Mrs. Nannie Malone and daughters.

Miss Mabel Florence, daughter of W. H. Florence has been hired as one of the teachers in the Jackson-twp school and Miss Thelma O'Hara has been employed to teach the coming year in the Pickaway-twp school.

Entirely Too Healthy

Little nine-year-old Jo Ann came home from school one day looking very much disgusted. Her mother inquired as to the cause, and Jo Ann said: "O, we had election of officers today and I was elected vice president."

"Well, that's fine; why the downcast countenance?" asked mother.

"It would be fine," said Jo Ann, "but John, the healthiest boy in our room, was elected president, and he's never sick, so what chance has the vice president?"

BRINGING UP FATHER

I'M GLAD YOU LIKE YOUR CLUB, BUT I HOPE YOU WILL TRY TO GET HOME RIGHT AFTER THE MEETING.

I WOULDN'T GO, BUT YOU SEE THEY WANT TO ELECT ME ON THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS.

BE SURE TO MEET ME AT DUGAN'S AT EIGHT-THIRTY. USE THE SAME EXCUSE I GAVE MY WIFE TO GET OUT.

THAT'S A BIRD MAGGIE WILL SURE FALL FOR THAT ONE.

DOO-GONE IT. I'VE FORGOTTEN THAT EXCUSE TO GET OUT THAT DINTY TOLD ME AN MAGGIE WANTS TO GO TO THE OPERA.

I HOPE YOU DIDN'T FORGET THE OPERA TICKETS.

NO SUCH LUCK. BUT I WISH I COULD REMEMBER WHAT I FORGOT TO REMEMBER.

FIVE POINTS

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Five Points M. E. church, will give their annual Fish Fry, July 31st. There will be a program in the afternoon and a social at night. Everybody come.

Rev. and Mrs. Clint Fearnor and daughter are holding a campmeeting near the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Campbell near Five Points.

The death of Mr. Horton Kidney was a shock to the community, also that of Captain W. E. Davis of Williamsport.

Mrs. Dorris Ugenbeel's condition is reported to be much better.

Mr. and Mrs. Delmus Turfinger announce the birth of a son. Mrs. Turfinger was Mrs. Margaret Howard before her marriage.

Mr. Jesse Riley, who broke his ankle some time ago, is able to be out.

Mrs. L. S. Owers of Michigan, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hudnell and family.

Mr. and Mrs. James Longbone and son and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Longbone of Columbus, visited Mr. and Mrs. Jack Crawford and family Sunday.

The old fashioned. Holiness campmeeting near Five Points is well attended.

Miss Mildred Long spent Sunday with Miss Ruth and Mary Haller.

Mr. Louie Zimmerman is able to be about after being confined to his home for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Donohoe of Lancaster, visited Mr. and Mrs. Edward Campbell and family Sunday.

Misses Ruth and Mary Haller guests on Sunday, Mrs. Mattie Shel Long, Monday.

Mrs. Vellie Hanson of near Pherson is on the sick list.

Mrs. Emmery Hatfield is able to be out after her long illness.

Mr. Howard Haller spent Sunday in Columbus.

Mrs. Linnie Owers and son, John are visiting a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Charley Owers and family.

Art's Definition

Shakespeare had not art? He was had by art; compelled and held by it. And by that holding and compulsion we get a vision of what art is: not a system, not a set of rules which perchance Aristotle might teach us, or another Greek but at its greatest expresses an age. This was the great age of English, never repeated in its aggregate of color, wealth, diction and power of words.—Henry Ches ter Tracy, in "English as Experience"

Keep Hold of Temper

Temper is valuable to man just so far as he can control it. Keep well in leash; it develops into will power, determination. Permitted to rage unchecked, it saps vitality, ruins disposition, and becomes a general nuisance.—Gill.

The bride was attired in a charming ensemble of white crepe with corresponding accessories. Her corsage was American Beauty roses and sweet peas.

After the ceremony a delicious dinner of pretty appointments was served to the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Bushee then left for ten days motor trip through the east visiting Washington D. C., Atlantic City, New York City and Niagara Falls.

For traveling the bride wore a tan sport model with corresponding shoes, hose and hat.

The bride and groom are both graduates of Amanda high school and the bride is also a graduate of Ohio university. She was formerly a teacher in the Amanda public schools and last year taught in the Lancaster schools.

The groom is a graduate of Lancaster Business college and is at the present time associated with the cost department of the Hocking Glass Co. of Lancaster.

AT PARTY IN ASHVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Reichelderfer of Tarlton, were guests on Thursday at a birthday dinner in Ashville, at which Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Snyder were hosts. The dinner at which guests were present from Columbus and elsewhere was given in compliment to Mrs. Clara Smith of Columbus, sister of Mrs. Snyder.

OLD FRIENDS HONOR MRS. REICHELDERFER

On Tuesday six friends of Mrs. Nelson Reichelderfer surprised her at her home in Tarlton, by calling on her birthday anniversary and making a real birthday party of the occasion. Mrs. Reichelderfer, who was expecting no one was delighted at being remembered by these guests who have been her friends for the past 35 years.

They were Mrs. Ed Ballard, Mrs. Myrtle Reichelderfer, Mrs. Ota Mowery, Mrs. Charles Karshner, Mrs. Lilly Zebring and Mrs. Cary Macklin. All are residents of the vicinity of Tarlton with the exception of Mrs. Karshner who is from New York and who is visiting Mrs. Mowery. She however was formerly a resident of Tarlton. The guests who brought gifts to Mrs. Reichelderfer also served refreshments during the evening.

TO LECTURE ON JOHN BROWN'S BODY

An unusual summer entertainment is to be held in Williamsport on Thursday evening, July 25 when the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church will present Mrs. George C. Gephart of St. Louis, Missouri, in a lecture recital on "John Brown's Body," by Stephen Vincent Benet. This book won the Pulitzer prize for the best book of verse published during 1928, and Mrs. Gephart's cutting and presentation have won much praise among the St. Louis groups who have had the opportunity to hear her. Since early April when she gave the selection for the first time, Mrs. Gephart's services have been requested more often than she has had time to give, for this one program alone. It is a program that every one should hear because of its literary beauty and culture value. Besides, the proceeds for the evening are to be given in entirety to that group of hard working and worthy women, the Ladies' Aid.

During her short visit in Williamsport Mrs. Gephart will be the guest of Mrs. Nancy Gephart.

MISS SANDERS IS HOSTESS

For the pleasure of her guest, Miss Florence Ulrich of Dayton, Miss Kathryn Sanders entertained Wednesday at her home on S. Scioto-st. Guests were invited for 3:30 and the affair extended quickly into the supper hour when the last five bridge games were completed.

For this event the Misses Nelle and Adeline Weldon threw open the door which connects their home with that of the Sanders. Several of the card tables were placed there for cards and supper. The Misses Weldon also assisted Miss Sanders in entertaining, as did her mother, Mrs. E. A. Allen.

Guests from a distance were, Mrs. Harriett Weldon of Columbus, guest of Mrs. L. B. James; Mrs. Rufus Allen of Columbus; Miss Josephine Smith of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Miss Lola Bell Black of Lancaster and the guest of honor, Miss Ulrich.

Before serving the delicious supper in two courses, the hostess presented Miss Rose Smith with a prize won for making the highest score for the afternoon. Miss Ulrich also received a gift as a guest prize from her hostess. Miss Ulrich left early Thursday morning for a visit in Toledo.

MUSICAL PROGRAM AT CARD PARTY

The party at the Pickaway Country Club Wednesday night was featured by the musical program presented by Dwight Weiler and Miss Kathrine Sanders. These two young artists captivated their audience by the excellence of their playing of classic numbers, and satisfied the younger set later by playing popular music and ballads for dancing.

Miss Sanders, a graduate of the College of Music at Capital University, played the piano accompaniment although she is also a violin artist. Mr. Weiler, a graduate of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, is a gifted musician, who received several scholarships at the Conservatory, and who has played for the past year in Chicago. Their playing was done in an informal manner, with a great deal of charm.

Their big number was, Siciliano and Rigaudon, by Francoeur and arranged by Kreiser. Among the numbers offered as encores and for dancing were, Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life, Serenade, My Wild Irish Rose, Desert Song, One Alone, Louise, Honey, I'll Always be in Love With You, Marie, Deep Night and My Mother's Eyes.

This informal musical program followed an evening of cards at which 18 tables were occupied. Prizes were awarded for 500 to Miss Harriett Marfield and Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger. Playing cards at the club Wednesday night was indeed a pleasure, both on the porch and inside the house. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the card game.

Among the guests were several

EFFICIENCY IS NEED HERE, COUNCIL SAYS

has said that such payment is dependent upon a favorable court construction of the will.

An ordinance determining to proceed with the improvement of parts of Washington and Towns by constructing extensions to the sanitary sewer system was introduced and passed under a suspension of the rules.

TO EXTEND MAINS

A communication from the state attorney general, calling attention to an unpaid balance due the state of $21.32, was referred to the committee on claims. A report from the Ohio Water Service Co. that it will extend its main on N. Pickaway-st to Northridge and also from Logan to Towns on Washington-st, providing council will order a hydrant for each 500 feet of extension, was referred to a committee of the whole with Frank Barnes as chairman.

When Councilman Will reported that officials of the Norfolk and Western railroad were willing to meet with council to discuss crossing safeguards and crossing eliminations, he was requested to invite the railroad officials to attend the next regular meeting. The report of O. L. Heise that he intends to plat his tract of ground at E. Mound and Franklin-sts was referred to the service committee and the city solicitor.

HORSE FANCIER TO MOVE TO THIS CITY

Through the office of Mack Parrett J., Jesse B. and Frances I. Aord have sold their property, located at 518 E. Mound-st, to Prof. J. A. Wallace and wife of 3146 St. Bernard Drive, Toledo. Prof. Wallace is the son of the late James T. Wallace, who at one time was sheriff of Pickaway-co. Prof. Wallace conducted a Saddle Horse Academy and Riding School in Toledo. He recently sold out his business but has retained several of his favorite saddle horses which he will bring to Circleville when he moves here in the fall.

BLACKLEG EPIDEMIC IS FEARED IN OHIO

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., July 18.—Fears that an epidemic of "blackleg" which is highly contagious and fatal disease to cattle, is sweeping a section of this county, were expressed here today.

Six calves have already been claimed by the disease in Wayne-twp, reports here stated.

The stricken district is believed to be confined to an area about a mile square. Inoculation of other cattle in that district has been started.

The disease is said to be carried by dogs, who contract it from chewing the bones of animals which died from it.

Beautiful Women

Use Mello-glo

Beauties who guard their complexion use MELLO-GLO Face Powder only. Famous for purity—its coloring matter is approved by the Government. The skin never looks pasty or flaky. It spreads more smoothly and produces a youthful bloom. Made by a new French process, MELLO-GLO Face Powder stays on longer.
